

Extract of the Valentine Book
Sasa Delmundo

The Valentine Book exposes what mr klaus schwab, founder and chairman of the World Economic Forum, really says in his book, “Covid19 and the great reset” ? How can we make them stop the tyranny ? What is the way out? And which way can we go ?

This is (or was) the book that Klaus Schwab, founder and chairman of the World Economic Forum, published in June 2020.

It started off by translating it into dutch and therefore reading every sentence many times very carefully, in order to translate correctly. From there on, I went to underlining certain things, to highlight them, since the truth is the book, but hidden in a mass of beautiful sentences, which made Mr Schwab totally expose him- and themselves for what they really are.

I commented on it, everywhere throughout the book ... and so, THE KEY out of the current hell became clear and the path to OUR Beautiful New World became visible, all the way throughout and under mr schwab's part of the book.

This is for ALL people, for many generations to come, instead of just for the happy few, as has been the case for far too long now and as it unfortunately would become much more so if Mr Schwab and his elite club that meets annually in Davos have their way.

The parts I added to his book are in bold, the parts of his book I want to draw extra attention to are now in italic and underlined. The whole book takes about a day to read, that's why I made this folder, a quick read through the book.

(My apologies if my english seems a bit strange sometimes, it's only my 3th language.)

We start of by giving an idea of what mr schwab and co want our world to look like from now on.

also extending the reach (pernicious or otherwise) of technology into our lives. No industry or business will be spared from the impact of these changes. Millions of companies risk disappearing (In reality, we see that only the small companies, SMEs, suffer from the measures, the multinationals not only stay afloat but make bigger profits than ever)

On an individual basis, for many, life as they've always known it is unravelling at alarming speed. (Children can no longer go to school, small businesses' and self-employed people go bankrupt, no longer able to pay off their mortgage loans, get divorced due to all the stress, the elderly die in total loneliness, and many, even teenagers, see and experience life so bleakly that they commit mass suicide)

the measures were one of the first forms of “institutionalized public health” that helped legitimize the “accretion of power” by the modern state. (Legitimization of accumulation of power by the modern state, so the state thinks it can appropriate even more concentrated power!)

Our principle about the economy is that it should serve the people and not the other way around. And it should be simple, whoever buys or wants something from any other pays for it, in money or some other exchange, whether at home or abroad. If you want to make a group purchase, you can organize it with participants from home and/or abroad. On all purchases 10% VAT is charged, except on real luxury goods, where it can be more. How much more, that's to decide for all communities or countries, by voluntary participating referenda. The same way that ALL decisions can be made.

No tax on labor, but on company profits above a certain size.

No more expensive politicians, nor money-consuming political parties that are actually crime cartels which are covered in a political sauce and which, in order to maintain this matrix, as well as many other things, only give the illusion of choice while all are rolling out the same criminal agenda and use so called democracy to divide people with apparent contradictions.

Public services such as schools, public transport, utilities, medical care, youth care, nursing homes, ... should all be public/community non-profit organizations and not money vehicles for CEOs and the like.

And organizations such as the WEF, IMF, UN, NATO, World Bank, Trilateral Commission, etc., which are doors behind which our money disappears without us having any visibility, let alone control over what happens to it afterwards, gone with them!

Multinationals, world corporations of big capital, that have succeeded in destroying the small independent producers in the sectors in which they are active by producing on a mega-scale, often of inferior quality, because every cent of profit counts and don't pay a cent profit tax, away with them!

Also the role of banks should be reconsidered, they can be a pure transaction, saving and lending organization, from and for the people instead of money machines to make the Rothschilds even richer as has been the case for hundreds of years now! The same with stock exchanges, with all their speculation, hedgefunds and fake bonds, away with them ! If anyone wants to invest into something, do it, either directly or through the bank for and by people, straight and transparent! If there are big projects or needs that a country or community wants to realize, then you present that to the people, with the estimated cost of it per person, and you let them vote on whether they want it or not, that's real democracy!

We don't need rulers who think they can rule over us and our lives, we can do that ourselves, we only need a set of basic rules that we agree on together and which everyone can identify with instead of countless laws and rules imposed from above which only exist to enslave the people and suck them dry as much as possible!

And while we touch the subject of sucking people dry, shall we also talk about royalty ? Those people who have, during many generations, been living in palaces at our expense, owning airplanes, racing cars, boats and the like with our money because they think they are from a bloodline that is worth more than ours ! Get rid of them! They are allowed to live, on the same conditions as everyone else, because no one is more than another, we are all human beings, with qualities and faults, but equal to each other in itself !

The spread of infectious diseases has a unique ability to fuel fear, anxiety and mass hysteria. (Could this be why the definition of a pandemic was changed by the WHO shortly before the outbreak? And why the media fueled the fear every day ?)

Unlike certain past epidemics, COVID-19 doesn't pose a new existential threat. Then why are these measures in place?

It will not result in unforeseen mass famines or major military defeats and regime changes. Whole populations will neither be exterminated nor displaced as a result of the pandemic. (Please keep this sentence well in mind, since it's exactly the opposite what Mr Schwab is telling us further in his book.)

of the changes that are coming.

We, ordinary people, can and will decide for ourselves in a completely and truly democratic way what changes we want to see in our world, we don't need a world elite for that, nor their political puppets.

favouring the interests of the few or the many; economies, when they recover, could take the path of more inclusivity and be more attuned to the needs of our global commons, or they could return to functioning as they did before.

We can also do it totally differently, like with direct, horizontal democracy by means of voluntary referendums on EVERYTHING, with an absolute maximum of self-determination and freedom for each individual and all people, without rulers, because, no one needs to be ruled over, with just a good set of basic rules that we agree on/choose together what we want instead of having it imposed on us topdown.

we should take advantage of this unprecedented opportunity to reimagine our world, in a bid to make it a better and more resilient one as it emerges on the other side of this crisis.

We agree on that, just the way it will take shape is opposite of what the elite like Mr. Schwab and his true master wants.

Epidemiologists, public-health specialists, economists, social scientists and all the other scientists and specialists who are in the business of helping decision-makers understand what lies ahead find it difficult (and sometimes impossible) to cross the boundaries of their own discipline. (Strange, isn't it, that all of these people have ties, interests and/or shares in big pharma and/or have received large sums of money from the Bill & Melinda Gatesfoundation, who happens to have become the largest shareholders in the vaccine industry and also the most insistent on vaccinating everyone worldwide.)

The above firmly points the finger at technological progress and globalization as the primary "culprits" responsible for greater interdependence. (Here mr Schwab says it himself, technological progress and globalization are the main culprits responsible for the greater interdependence and for the fact that everything has to go so fast today !)

In addition, they have created such a culture of immediacy that it's not an exaggeration to claim that, in today's world, everything moves much faster than before. (So, because we are online, everything and everyone must now go faster and faster ? Strange, you'd think that many things, like sending mail, would naturally speed up that, and all the other things that flow from that would just follow their natural rythme. After all, the internet is there for our comfort, so why do people have to kneel under it as speed slaves?)

It is hard, if not impossible, to foresee what might happen at the end of the chain when multiple-order effects and their ensuing cascades of consequences have occurred after unemployment spikes, companies go bust and some countries are teetering on the verge of collapse. None of these are unpredictable per se, but it is their propensity to create perfect storms when they conflate with other risks that will take us by surprise. To sum up, the pandemic is not a black-swan event, but some of its consequences will be.

(Of course, because all these things happen as a consequence of the measures that are imposed on us by elites and corrupted politicians who cooperate with them in order to achieve precisely that goal, so that the great reset they desire can be pushed through. And those "some consequences", they just happen to affect all the small independent businesses, but not the multinationals, and all the ordinary people, but not the rich and powerful of the earth ?)

Yes, said the guardians of public health, who became part of urban life in Europe from the 15th century onwards. (The “guardians” of public health are since long the ones who assumed to have the right to decide about everyone else, it apparently didn't matter to them either, if people died in droves from the measures they imposed, as long as it wasn't from another, well-defined disease. That more people died that way than would have been the case from the disease was and still is apparently irrelevant).

On the supply side, if prematurely loosening the various restrictions and the rules of social distancing result in an acceleration of infection (which almost all scientists believe it would), more employees and workers would become infected and more businesses would just stop functioning. And by closing companies they don't stop functioning ? And getting infected does not equal getting sick, this is true in less than 1% of cases, and even then almost exclusively in people who are retired, which are no part of production and so on.)

“Only saving lives will save livelihoods” (Then why are they destroying livelihoods of billions ?)

Only future data and subsequent analysis will provide incontrovertible proof that the trade-off between health and the economy does not exist. (Well, it's too late then, isn't it ?)

All producers and governmental bodies such as the CDC and EMA state clearly that they are not sure that the vaccine protects against the disease, they have therefore only given a provisional authorization to use it as a test, periode running until December 2023, politicians also already make clear that the measures continue to apply to vaccinated persons, yet, Mr schwab wants readers to believe that a full return to normal can only be reached by the vaccine.

The next hurdle , the political challenge of vaccinating enough people worldwide (we are collectively as strong as the weakest link) with a high enough compliance rate despite the rise of anti-vaxxers. (To put aside people who oppose this particular "vaccine", because it contains entirely new technology that has never been applied to humans before, contains mRNA, nanoparticles, aborted foetal cells and so on, has been developed at a rapid pace, has not been tested on animals, and do not wish to participate in what is by definition a medical experiment that they suddenly want to inject to billions of people, without -at least officially- having any idea of the short, medium and long term consequences, as anti-vaxxers is yet another very clear example of psychological manipulation and framing), also, that sentence is to implant the idea in our brain that we all should be “vaccinated”.

During the intervening months, the economy will not operate at full capacity:

will have lasting effects on the broader economy through bankruptcies and losses of employment, which in turn begs the question of whether these possible lasting effects could be followed by a collapse in demand as people lose their income and their confidence in the future.

the longer lockdowns last, the greater the structural damage they inflict by leaving permanent scars in the economy through job losses, bankruptcies and capital spending cancellations. As a rule of thumb, every month that large parts of an economy remain closed, annual growth might fall by a further 2 percentage points. But as we would expect, the relationship between the duration of restrictive measures and the corresponding impact on GDP is not linear. (Here, in other words, the perception is created that all of this additional and long-term economic damage is due to the fact that many do not feel called upon to serve as medical guinea pigs, and to turn those who do have faith in these specific “vaccines” as described above against this other group, because, "they are anti-vaxxers, and it is because of their refusal that the economy can only partially get back on its feet". A FINE EXAMPLE OF DIVIDE AND RULE !

“This precipitous drop in economic activity has caused a level of pain that is hard to capture in words, as lives are upended amid great uncertainty about the future.” In just the two months of March and April 2020, more than 36 million Americans lost their jobs, reversing 10 years of job gains. In the US, like elsewhere, temporary dismissals caused by the initial lockdowns may become permanent, inflicting intense social pain (that only robust social safety nets can alleviate) (As we will see increasingly later in this book, this is where they want to go with the remaining of us)

neoliberalism, a corpus of ideas and policies that can loosely be defined as favouring competition over solidarity, creative destruction over government intervention and economic growth over social welfare. (that's correct, and now that the rich have been for a very long time creating and exploiting this system, it's time for a change, first, they acquired all of the money in the world, now there going for ALL the rest.)

In the post-pandemic era, the numbers of unemployed, worried, miserable, resentful, sick and hungry will have swelled dramatically. (And all this, just to “flatten the curves”, for our protection against a virus that takes maximum 0,23% of the total mortality, really ?)

Personal tragedies will accrue, fomenting anger, resentment and exasperation in different social groups, including the unemployed, the poor, the migrants, the prisoners, the homeless, all those left out...

The return of “big” government

Here, we have him coming with his big government, aka global government, aka one world order, aka new world order.) “The COVID-19 pandemic has made government important again. Not just powerful again (look at those once-mighty companies begging for help), (although they are the only ones who are allowed to continue functioning, could it not be that they just see an opportunity in this p(l)andemic to aquire additional state finances?)

It's always been the case and there is no reason why it should be different with the COVID-19 pandemic. Historians point to the fact that the rising fiscal resources of capitalist countries from the 18th century onwards were always closely associated with the need to fight wars, particularly those that took place in distant countries (let that sink in !) Since then, the responses to major crises have always further consolidated the power of the state, starting with taxation: “an inherent and essential attribute of sovereignty belonging as a matter of right to every independent government”. A few examples illustrating the point strongly suggest that this time, as in the past, taxation will increase. (No doubt the taxes for ordinary people, given that the really rich and multinationals just don't pay any, given that they use tax loopholes, tailor-made for them.) As in the past, the social rationale and political justification underlying the increases will be based upon the narrative of “countries at war” (only this time against an invisible enemy). So here we are actually being explained what the pretext is for picking us completely bald.

As an add-on, governments will strongly encourage public-private partnerships so that private companies get more involved in the mitigation of global risks. (In reality, we have seen for a long time that public-private partnerships (PPP's) are convenient vehicles to load tax payers money into companies, after which the company is sucked dry on the private side, by giving political puppets very highly paid seats on boards of directors, paying a puppet CEO an insanely high salary, -for services probably rendered earlier- and so on, and off course privatizing the remaining profits by paying out loads to private shareholders.)

Irrespective of the details, the role of the state will increase and, in doing so, will materially affect the way business is conducted. To varying degrees, business executives in all industries and all countries will have to adapt to greater government intervention. Research and development for global public goods such as health and climate change solutions will be actively pursued. Taxation will increase, particularly for the most privileged, because governments will need to strengthen their resilience capabilities and wish to invest more heavily in them. (Strange, earlier, he said that only persons, not companies would be taxed. Notice also that governments wish to invest more heavily in the most privileged companies.)

Nowhere will this intrusion of governments, whose form may be benign or malign depending on the country and the culture in which it is taking place, manifest itself with greater vigour than in the redefinition of the social contract.

calls for more spending (and therefore higher taxes) will get louder, with a growing realization that “efficient management” cannot compensate for underinvestment. COVID-19 has also revealed yawning gaps in most welfare systems.

Another aspect that is critical for social contracts in Western democracies pertains to liberties and freedom. There is currently growing concern that the fight against this pandemic and future ones will lead to the creation of permanent surveillance societies. This issue is explored in more detail in the chapter on the technological reset, but suffice to say that a state emergency can only be justified when a threat is public, universal and existential. In addition, political theorists often emphasize that extraordinary powers require authorization from the people and must be limited in time and proportion. One can agree with the former part of the assertion (public, universal and existential threat), but what about the latter?

– as a result, power and influence will be redistributed chaotically and in some cases grudgingly. It will certainly be grudgingly, when the people fully realize what the global elite and its political puppets have been doing to the people for many decades and decide that it has been enough, that we are fed up with your filthy practices, and that we want to make our own New World, having learned from the many mistakes we have seen you make for so long, so that there is not a single person or people left on Earth that does not suffer in one way or another from your never-ending stream of crimes.

We, ordinary, good people, we want peace, tranquility, a good existence for everyone, without being forced to live by your rules and conditions for our existence, without everything that makes our world a sick mess that poisons us in all possible ways, like by pouring glyphosate on our food, putting fluorine in our drinking water and what more, we want to build a good world for ourselves and our children in all transparency, in brotherhood with all other peoples and religions, in mutual respect for each other!

the political and societal backlash against globalization relentlessly gained strength. (Maybe wanna-be world leaders, like Mr. Schwab & Co, aka Mr. Global, who think they can determine the direction of the whole world through their annual meetings in Davos, and who are not democratically elected by anyone to do so, should just accept that there is some political and especially societal resistance to their activities and plans because ordinary people don't like them and what they're doing at all?)

As the social costs provoked by the asymmetric effects of globalization rose (particularly in terms of manufacturing unemployment in high-income countries), the risks of financial globalization became ever-more apparent after the Great Financial Crisis that began in 2008.

(The social costs are indeed provoked by the asymmetric effects of globalization, the fabrication of unemployment in high-income countries, and the even more pathetic wages in low-income countries, next to robbing them of their natural resources off course. Concerning that global financial system, with hedge funds, messy transactions and all that junk, ordinary people don't care about either, it's not good for anything, except for those who know how to make a big, fat profit from it, so, gone with it all!

Combining economic integration (a proxy for globalization) with democracy implies that the important decisions have to be made at a supranational level, which somehow weakens the sovereignty of the nation state.

Strange, democracy is equated here with the fact that important decisions are made at the supranational level, how can there be any real democracy? When the distance between the people and those at in charge, democracy just decreases, we see enough of that in european decision making, no ?

that the rejection of globalization by voters is a rational response when the economy is strong and inequality is high. As if people reject globalization only because of the fact that not all countries are equally rich. It seems to me it's more a matter of wanting to preserve autonomy, self-government and self-determination. And like if it makes any difference that the british people voted brexit when all politicians where they can vote for are part of the same international criminal gang.

Antiglobalization was strong in the run-up to 1914 and up to 1918, then less so during the 1920s, but it reignited in the 1930s as a result of the Great Depression, triggering an increase in tariff and non-tariff barriers that destroyed many businesses and inflicted much pain on the largest economies of that time. This is again a brain manipulation, by associating anti-globalization with the periods before each world war, the idea is planted in your brain that anti-globalization is dangerous and leads to a world war. The things that led to the world wars are complex and very diverse, but in short it can be said that wars are caused by those who benefit from them, thus earn a lot of money, and who use very devious tricks and manipulations to do so.

("hyper-globalization" has lost all its political and social capital, and defending it is no longer politically tenable), but it is important to limit the downside of a possible free fall that would precipitate major economic damage and social suffering.

Wait a minute, withdrawing from globalization should not lead to a free fall because it would cause great economic damage and social distress, but destroying the economy of, if I am correct, 193 countries (those affiliated with the WHO) through horrendous deprivation of liberty measures, with enormous social suffering, for the sake of a virus with a mortality rate of 0.23%, that is not a problem ? Besides that, I agree totally that "hyper-globalization" has lost all its political and social capital, and defending it is no longer politically tenable".

Progress is indeed possible in those global areas that have traditionally benefited from international cooperation, like environmental agreements, public health and tax havens. Really? Listing tax havens in the list of global areas that benefit from international cooperation which could use progress? How long have you, global top leaders of supranational organizations, been able to cooperate globally without limitation to do something about tax havens? And we're not just talking about Panama and the Cayman Islands, but also, for example, the Netherlands, Luxembourg and Liechtenstein, to name just the ones that come to mind. Instead of doing something about it, it seems that you created them, and it wouldn't be surprising if investigations showed that your friends from the world elite have large assets parked there, as perhaps you too Mr Schwab! I hope from the bottom of my heart that this will finally be properly investigated once the world economy has completely crashed and all those foreign currencies have become worthless anyway so that secrecy is no longer worth keeping.

This will only come about through improved global governance – So, doing something about the tax havens, which you know have been a thorn in the side of many people around the world for a very long time, is actually the carrot you are holding out to them to ensure they cave in to your global government dream ? Yuk, how evil !

The international geopolitical game is being played more dirty by the well-defined elite, who want to push through the world government in order to really get ALL THE POWER AND ALL THE RIGHTS on the Earth and everyone on it in their possession. This is not a conspiracy theory, these are absolute facts, which I am trying to make visible to everyone by unraveling Mr. Schwab's book about Covid19 and the Great Reset, because if we, ordinary, honest people of Earth, do not stop them, then not only will we NEVER get our freedom back, not only will we soon lose ALL our possessions (you'll own nothing and will be happy, as the promotional video on the World Economic Forum website made clear), but OUR CHILDREN AND ALL GENERATIONS AFTER THAT WILL NEVER KNOW ANY FREEDOM !

And when that would be the case, dear people, I sincerely think that we would be better off killing our so loved children ourselves than letting them suffer that terrible fate....

So that's why I, a mother, have been fighting for a year now with EVERYTHING I have in me to bring out this horrible truth in any way I can, even though the people who can't believe it, because they can't break out of the hypnosis they have been deliberately put into by complicit media, and who are such good people that they can't imagine that there are people who are really that bad, are living on this planet, called me a conspiracy wacko / aluhead etc, which are by the way, terms created by the CIA, in order to put people who have done research and who know exactly what they are doing, in the corner of the lunatic fringe, where they are harmless.

Worldwide there are now millions of people who have really researched all this properly, including many doctors and scientists, who came on the trail of all this because they noticed from their training and professional experience that there was just too much wrong with the whole Covid19 story, after which they naturally went to find out of what is really going on. All of us have been laughed at, ignored, censored, threatened in one way or another, some even locked up for a time, just because we want to save ourselves and the whole world from the kind of criminals to which Mr. Schwab / Mr. Global, belong. Given that you can now read for yourself in his book what their plans are and hopefully see through the manipulation techniques used in it, you will know for yourself that this is not a delusion of conspiracy theorists, but bitter reality.

Before I continue to read and comment on this book, I must tell you something that is very, very urgent. That corona vaccine, which this same elite is so eager to inject into the entire world population as soon as possible, that is really not a vaccine. They only call it that because that word inspires confidence, we associate it with protection against disease. But it is absolutely not for our benefit, quite the contrary, many independent scientists and specialists in this matter have been warning us for many months and since the first people worldwide have been injected with it, these people are dying in droves, deaths of which, if local or national media mention it for a small part, it is invariably dismissed with the statement that these people died of "underlying causes".

EVERYTHING I TELL YOU CAN AND WILL BE PROVEN !

So please stop having you and your loved ones vaccinated with that stuff, it is unnecessary and life threatening, presumably one brand of vaccine is already more dangerous than another, probably because it would be too conspicuous if everyone died within a week of being administered.

And also stop complying with those measures, them too are really unnecessary, they are just meant to suppress us and get us used to accepting step by step the new normal that this elite has in store for us.

And also stop paying taxes and fines, these governments, who are all knowingly participating in this, have lost ALL legitimacy, don't give them your money anymore!

To conclude this interim speech, I would also like to tell you that also, but not only, the Rothschild family is involved in this, about the richest family on Earth, who own almost ALL the banks worldwide, so also stop paying off your loans, lay this gang dry ! If we do that en masse, then they can't touch us, the whole world system is ruined anyway, we're all on the eve of the New World, but it will be OUR New World, where all ordinary, good people, for the first time in probably hundreds of years and even possibly longer, will be truly free and happy, because that's what we're going for, and where we all together will do our utmost, to get it done as soon as possible. WE CAN DO IT!

I also wish to make an appeal to all honest magistrates, police officers, judges, examining magistrates and military personnel to IMMEDIATELY do what is actually your job, which is to keep the order, because of course there is a risk that idiots of a bad kind will try to take advantage of this to do things that are wrong, to ask for the evidence, which is stored on many, many computers of conspiracy wappies all over the world, in addition to the fact that, at least for the moment, it can just be found for the most part online on the websites of all the individuals and organizations involved, to collect their computers, freeze and investigate the bank accounts of all those involved, to arrest and imprison all those involved, i.e. the elite and all their political and non-political accomplices, who are involved in this crime against humanity, so that they can later stand trial before an independent and transparent people's court, in my opinion best lead by Dr Reiner Fuellmich.

will provoke immediate devastation like no remittances or increased hunger; (Who is causing famine in all countries? Would that have anything to do with the fact that poor farmers are forced to buy Monsanto/Bayer genetically modified seeds, which are sterile, forcing them to buy from them again year after year instead of letting part of their crop go to seed so that they have free seeds for the following year.)

Do you really think that the people who are causing this with the measures they are imposing on us worldwide are doing this for a virus with a very limited mortality rate, which mainly affects the elderly? To protect the elderly they reduce the whole world to rubble, billions of people are condemned to the greatest poverty, even according to Mr. Schwabs own words here, to starvation !

AND THESE ARE THE PEOPLE WHO WANT TO FORCE US ACCEPTING A WORLD GOVERNMENT? THE SAME PEOPLE WHO HAVE MADE US LIVE IN A DICTATORSHIP FOR A YEAR NOW AND ONLY WANT TO MAKE THIS MUCH WORSE ACCORDING TO EVERYTHING YOU CAN READ IN THIS BOOK, UNDER THE FALSE PRETEXT OF A DANGEROUS VIRUS, IMPOSE MEASURES THAT CAUSE ALL THAT IS WRITTEN HERE?

WE, ORDINARY GOOD PEOPLE, MUST NOT LET THIS HAPPEN !

The pandemic has brought the issue of food security back with a vengeance, and in many countries it could entail a humanitarian and food crisis catastrophe.

Officials from the UN Food and Agriculture Organization predict that the number of people suffering from acute food insecurity could double in 2020 to 265 million.

And now pay close attention people, and allow yourself be well aware of what is actually being said here by Mr Schwab!

While for a pandemic, a majority of citizens will tend to agree with the necessity to impose coercive measures, they will resist constraining policies in the case of environmental risks where the evidence can be disputed. A more fundamental reason also exists: fighting a pandemic does not require a substantial change of the underlying socio-economic model and of our consumption habits. Fighting environmental risks does. So for this, the link between the p(l)andemic and the environment had to serve! In addition, Mr Schwab himself says here that no substantial change in our socio-economic models and consumption habits are actually needed to combat a pandemic ! So why did they impose on us these coercive measures that destroy our economy ? And why do the coercive measures don't apply to multinationals, as we see in practice ? I know it's hard to believe that such pure evilness exists, but please, CONNECT THE DOTS !

So, for recapitulation , according to Mr Schwab's above assertion, the coercive measures are not needed because of a virus but to combat environmental risks ! The next excuse to deprive every human being forever of his or her fundamental primal rights as a free born being on this planet is thus born !

While it are those same rich stinkers who constantly fly around in private planes, strange that that doesn't seem to be a problem for the environment, isn't it ? Just to mention something that comes immediately to mind, there will undoubtedly be more of these kinds of objections to make, such as living in palaces and castles, and heating their private outdoor swimming pools....

It seems to suggest that small individual actions (consuming much less, not using our cars and not flying) are of little significance when compared to the size of emissions generated by electricity, agriculture and industry, the "big-ticket emitters" that continued to operate during the lockdowns (with the partial exception of some industries). Here we have it ! Less driving around and flying don't make that much difference, as do "some industries", which are strangely unspecified, it's down to "electricity, agriculture and (also unspecified) industry", the big emitters, I guess it won't take a long time before the link to our homes will be made, we'll see what we get to read next.)

What it also reveals is that the biggest "offenders" in terms of carbon emissions aren't always those often perceived as the obvious culprits. A recent sustainability report shows that the total carbon emissions generated by the electricity production required to power our electronic devices (Here he is already arriving in his slippers.) and transmit their data are roughly equivalent to that of the global airline industry. The conclusion? Even unprecedented and draconian lockdowns (Draconian, indeed!) with a third of the world population confined to their homes for more than a month came nowhere near to being a viable decarbonization strategy because, even so, the world economy kept emitting large amounts of carbon dioxide. What then might such a strategy look like? The considerable size and scope of the challenge can only be addressed by a combination of:

1) a radical and major systemic change in how we produce the energy we need to function; and

2) structural changes in our consumption behaviour. If, in the postpandemic era, we decide to resume our lives just as before (by driving the same cars, by flying to the same destinations, (What? Just now Mr. Schwab stated that these things hardly make any difference? by eating the same things, by heating our house the same way, and so on). (Ah, here he is, still moving one step at a time, it's all about what we eat and how we heat our homes, I bet that soon we won't be allowed to eat meat anymore and will all have to live in a apartment box of a few square meters, where we won't be allowed to go outside unless it's strictly necessary, due to the obviously permanent measures)) make “good use” of the pandemic by not letting the crisis go to waste. The exhortation of different leaders ranging from HRH the Prince of Wales to Andrew Cuomo to “build it back better” HERE IT IS, the corrupted new world order politicians, delivered slogan ! BUILD BACK BETTER ! This is then called by Mr. Schwab "Enlightened Leadership ", enlightened, as in according to the rules of the Illuminati, a very dark group, engaged in satanic practices and rituals, but hey, that's something of the conspiracy wackos, isn't it ?

Our mobile devices have become a permanent and integral part of our personal and professional lives, helping us on many different fronts, anticipating our needs, listening to us and locating us, even when not asked to do so... Automation and robots are reconfiguring the way businesses operate with staggering speed and returns on scale inconceivable just a few years ago. LISTENING TO US AND LOCATING US, EVEN WHEN NOT ASKED TO DO SO...

Innovation in genetics, with synthetic biology now on the horizon, is also exciting, paving the way for developments in healthcare that are groundbreaking. (Innovation in genetics, synthetic biology is EXCITING ?) Biotechnology still falls short of stopping, let alone preventing, a disease outbreak, but recent innovations have allowed the identification and sequencing of the coronavirus' genome much faster than in the past, as well as the elaboration of more effective diagnostics. (So, where is that sequence of the coronavirus and why this so called coronavaccin?) In addition, the most recent biotechnology techniques using RNA and DNA platforms make it possible to develop vaccines faster than ever. They might also help with the development of new bioengineered treatments. To sum up, the speed and breadth of the Fourth Industrial Revolution have been and continue to be remarkable.

also accentuate one of the greatest societal and individual challenges posed by tech: privacy. We will see how contact tracing has an unequalled capacity and a quasi-essential place in the armoury needed to combat COVID-19, while at the same time being positioned to become an enabler of mass surveillance.
This is yet another announcement !

forcing more profound changes

Some of the old habits will certainly return (the joy and pleasure of personal contacts can't be matched – we are social animals after all!), but many of the tech behaviours that we were forced to adopt during confinement will through familiarity become more natural. As social and physical distancing persist, relying more on digital platforms to communicate, or work, or seek advice, or order something will, little by little, gain ground on formerly ingrained habits. (little by little, that's how they like to do things.) (Zoom is safer, cheaper, greener and much more convenient), driving to a distant family gathering for the weekend (the WhatsApp family group is not as fun but, again, safer, cheaper and greener) or even attending an academic course (not as fulfilling, but cheaper and more convenient). (This is meant to make us think that it's not so bad, that there are benefits too, and that we'll adapt quickly anyway. Also notice that, by doing everything online, like talking with family, they can -and do already- follow every word said.)

To date governments have often slowed the pace of adoption of new technologies by lengthy ponderings about what the best regulatory framework should look like but, as the example of telemedicine and drone delivery is now showing, a dramatic acceleration forced by necessity is possible. So, governments have long wanted to push through the acceptance of new technologies but didn't know what the best regulatory framework should look like! But now, supposedly forced by necessity, it is suddenly possible? How miraculous isn't it ! You would almost think that the whole PLANDEMY was caused for those kind of things ! This is really coming in handy !

During the lockdowns, a quasi-global relaxation of regulations that had previously hampered progress in domains where the technology had been available for years suddenly happened because there was no better or other choice available. What was until recently unthinkable suddenly became possible, and we can be certain that neither those patients who experienced how easy and convenient telemedicine was nor the regulators who made it possible will want to see it go into reverse. New regulations will stay in place.

In one form or another, social- and physical-distancing measures are likely to persist after the pandemic itself subsides, ☺☺☺ justifying the decision in many companies from different industries to accelerate automation. After a while, the enduring concerns about technological unemployment will recede as societies emphasize the need to restructure the workplace in a way that minimizes close human contact. Indeed, automation technologies are particularly well suited to a world in which human beings can't get too close to each other or are willing to reduce their interactions. Our lingering and possibly lasting fear of being infected with a virus (COVID-19 or another)

In 2016, two academics from Oxford University came to the conclusion that up to 86% of jobs in restaurants, 75% of jobs in retail and 59% of jobs in entertainment could be automatized by 2035. (86% of restaurant jobs automated ? Because there will only be deliveries with drones? No, because you don't need a restaurant for that, only a kitchen...Could it be that the possibility of going to a restaurant would still remain? For whom then? Not for the masses, the plebs, because otherwise all restaurants and all jobs in them could be preserved, right ? Could it be that some, probably very expensive and fancy restaurants could remain open so that the elite could still go out to dine while the rest of us are all locked up for eternity without having committed any crime? That would be the height of irony, diabolical even, that the gang of top criminals, who have managed to work themselves into the highest echelons of governments and supranational organizations such as the WEF, into the most powerful positions on Earth, are going to have fun at restaurants, while the good people are locked up at home forever and ever!

automation and robots that enable more local production, while keeping costs down, will be in great demand.

and the introduction of more robots in our personal and professional lives.

physical distancing became an obligation, and of course robotic delivery – a soon-to-be important component of healthcare supply chains that will in turn lead to the “contactless” delivery of groceries and other essentials. (So here it is actually announced that soon we will not be allowed to go shopping either, and thus will be even more confined than we have been for a year now.)

capable of putting an army of delivery robots on the road and in the air. (Only delivery robots ? Why don't I believe a word of this?)

technology can be a formidable shortcut, allowing public health officials to identify infected people very rapidly,

A tracking app gains insights in real time by, for example, determining a person's current location through geodata via GPS coordinates or radio cell location. By contrast, tracing consists in gaining insights in retrospect, like identifying physical contacts between people using Bluetooth. Do you see it? Mr Schwab wants to permanently track people's movements and know via Bluetooth who they have been in contact with. Anyone who thinks this data will only be used for virus control really needs to wake up urgently, why are there already cameras all over the streets identifying license plates while people driving around alone in their cars can't possibly be a virological risk, have cities been full of cameras for years that can zoom in on the smallest details of what everyone is doing in real time, have they recently put cameras in London to monitor social distancing and no doubt are meant to stay there permanently? They want to be able to constantly monitor every aspect of our lives, and this forever, is it becoming clear what implications this will have on our lives ? That if we allow it, we will NEVER know a sense of freedom again, but in contrast will we know and feel controlled 24/7 ? Notice also the mention of radio cell location, thus, possible build- in radiocell.

it not only allows backtracking all the contacts with whom the user of a mobile phone has been in touch, but also tracking the user's real-time movements,

They shifted from the retroactive tracing of chains of past contagion to the real-time tracking of movements in order to confine a person implemented coercive and intrusive measures of digital tracing. They took the decision to track individuals without their consent, through their mobile and credit card data, and even employed video surveillance (in South Korea). In addition, some economies required the mandatory wearing of electronic bracelets for travel arrivals and people in quarantine where individuals placed in quarantine are equipped with a mobile phone to monitor their location and be publicly identified should they breach the rules. (Just like ankle bracelets used for criminals!)

The contact detection only works with the latest versions of Bluetooth (an obvious limitation in many less digitally advanced countries where a large percentage of mobiles do not have sufficient Bluetooth capability for effective detection). Here I feel it coming again, as always on his slippers.... In countries where people don't use the most modern digital smartphones, that tracking doesn't go so well ... would that be a stepping stone to formulating a reason to plant a chip, the radio cell device, in all of these people ? We shall see as we read on.....

Bluetooth identifies the user's physical contacts with another user of the application accurately to within about two metres (Two meters ? So that's why we have to keep the so-called social distance !) and, if a risk of COVID-19 transmission is incurred, the app will warn the contact, at which point the transmission of stored data to the ministry of health becomes mandatory (but the contact's anonymity is maintained). (How long would it take for that anonymity to be permanently removed do you think ? In Belgium, it's been for years that the government gets all medical information directly from doctors and pharmacists, automatically stored on a government server, and they refuse to take it off when you tell them to. Next to that, the government works together with a company called Bluesquare, that has received, next to a large investment, millions of euros of the Bill and Melinda Gates foundation in 2020, which means that Bill Gates has now access to ALL our medical information.)

the app could end up identifying most citizens. Cyber intrusions, issues of trust in the operator of the system and the timing of data retention pose additional privacy concerns. Other options exist. These are mainly related to the availability of open and verifiable source codes, and to guarantees pertaining to data supervision and the length of conservation.

nature of modern life beneath the individualist façade of rights and contractual obligations. Individualistic FACADE of rights ?

No voluntary contract-tracing app will work if people are unwilling to provide their own personal data to the governmental agency that monitors the system; if any individual refuses to download the app (and therefore to withhold information about a

But as always, the devil is in the detail of the policy and its execution. Questions like whether the digital tracking should be mandatory or voluntary, whether the data should be collected on an anonymized or personal basis and whether the information should be collected privately or publicly disclosed

As the coronavirus crisis recedes and people start returning to the workplace, the corporate move will be towards greater surveillance; for better or for worse, companies will be watching and sometimes recording what their workforce does. The trend could take many different forms, is that the surveillance tools are likely to remain in place after the crisis and even when a vaccine is finally found, simply because employers don't have any incentive to remove a surveillance system once it's been installed, particularly if one of the indirect benefits of surveillance is to check on employees' productivity. This is what happened after the terrorist attacks of 11 September 2001. All around the world, new security measures like employing widespread cameras, requiring electronic ID cards and logging employees or visitors in and out became the norm. At that time, these measures were deemed extreme, but today they are used everywhere and considered "normal". An increasing number of analysts, policy-makers and security specialists fear the same will now happen with the tech solutions put into place to contain the pandemic. They foresee a dystopian world ahead of us.

The risk of dystopia

Now that information and communication technologies permeate almost every aspect of our lives and forms of social participation, any digital experience that we have can be turned into a “product” destined to monitor and anticipate our behaviour. The risk of possible dystopia stems from this observation. Over the past few years, it has nourished countless works of arts, ranging from novels like The Handmaid’s Tale to the TV series “Black Mirror”. In academia, it finds its expression in the research undertaken by scholars like Shoshana Zuboff. Her book Surveillance Capitalism warns about customers being reinvented as data sources, with “surveillance capitalism” transforming our economy, politics, society and our own lives by producing deeply anti-democratic asymmetries of knowledge and the power that accrues to knowledge. Over the coming months and years, the trade-off between public-health benefits and loss of privacy will be carefully weighed, becoming the topic of many animated conversations and heated debates. Most people, fearful of the danger posed by COVID-19, will ask: Isn’t it foolish not to leverage the power of technology to come to our rescue when we are victims of an outbreak and facing a life-or-death kind of situation? They will then be willing to give up a lot of privacy and will agree that in such circumstances public power can rightfully override individual rights. Then, when the crisis is over, some may realize that their country has suddenly been transformed into a place where they no longer wish to live. This thought process is nothing new. Over the last few years, both governments and firms have been using increasingly sophisticated technologies to monitor and sometimes manipulate citizens and employees; if we are not vigilant, warn the privacy advocates, the pandemic will mark an important watershed in the history of surveillance. The argument put forward by those who above all fear the grip of technology on personal freedom is plain and simple: in the name of public health, some elements of personal privacy will be abandoned for the benefit of containing an epidemic, just as the terrorist attacks of 9/11 triggered greater and permanent security in the name of protecting public safety. Then, without realizing it, we will fall victims of new surveillance powers that will never recede and that could be repurposed as a political means for more sinister ends. (Illuminati, as I wrote a while ago in this text, are satanists, they worship the devil, in the same way as there are billions of people worldwide worship God. Whether you believe in that or not doesn't matter, what matters is that they believe in that. And one of the most important rules within Satanism, is that they have to announce their plans in some way in advance. It seems to me that that is exactly what Mr Schwab is doing just above. You may think I am crazy to suspect this man of satanism, I can only tell you that I have been researching this phenomenon for a year now and that it really does exist, much more than unsuspecting people realize, there is plenty of information about it that proves this beyond doubt. I would also like to ask you this question: Who are the ones who are getting rich on this planet ? Are they the good people? Does anyone get rich from just working honestly for a living, paying the bills correctly and following all the rules properly?

As the last few pages have exposed beyond a reasonable doubt, the pandemic could open an era of active health surveillance made possible by location-detecting smartphones, facial-recognition cameras and other technologies that identify sources of infection and track the spread of a disease in quasi real time. Despite all the precautions certain countries take to control the power of tech and limit surveillance (others are not so concerned), some thinkers worry about how some of the quick choices we make today will influence our societies for years to come. The historian Yuval Noah Harari is one of them. In a recent article, he argues that we'll have a fundamental choice to make between totalitarian surveillance and citizen empowerment. It's worth exposing his argument in detail: Surveillance technology is developing at breakneck speed, and what seemed science-fiction 10 years ago is today old news. As a thought experiment, consider a hypothetical government that demands that every citizen wears a biometric bracelet that monitors body temperature and heart-rate 24 hours a day. The resulting data is hoarded and analysed by government algorithms. The algorithms will know that you are sick even before you know it, and they will also know where you have been, and who you have met. (Again, this strikes me as a satanic announcement) The chains of infection could be drastically shortened, and even cut altogether. Such a system could arguably stop the epidemic in its tracks within days. Sounds wonderful, right? The downside is, of course, that this would give legitimacy to a terrifying new surveillance system. If you know, for example, that I clicked on a Fox News link rather than a CNN link, that can teach you something about my political views and perhaps even my personality. But if you can monitor what happens to my body temperature, blood pressure and heartrate as I watch the video clip, you can learn what makes me laugh, what makes me cry, and what makes me really, really angry. (And also this seems to me to be absolutely a satanic announcement....)

It is crucial to remember that anger, joy, boredom and love are biological phenomena just like fever and a cough. The same technology that identifies coughs could also identify laughs. If corporations and governments start harvesting our biometric data en masse, they can get to know us far better than we know ourselves, and they can then not just predict our feelings but also manipulate our feelings and sell us anything they want — be it a product or a politician. (And also this seems to me to be a clear example of a satanic announcement....)

Biometric monitoring would make Cambridge Analytica's data hacking tactics look like something from the Stone Age. Imagine North Korea in 2030, (reference to Agenda 2030 !) when every citizen has to wear a biometric bracelet 24 hours a day. If you listen to a speech by the Great Leader and the bracelet picks up the tell-tale signs of anger, you are done for. (To be disposed of...) We will have been warned! (So, with this, the satanic duty of announcement has been fulfilled, we have been warned!)

Some social commentators like Evgeny Morozov go even further, convinced that the pandemic heralds a dark future of techno-totalitarian state surveillance. His argument, premised upon the concept of "technological solutionism" put forward in a book written in 2012, posits that the tech "solutions" offered to contain the pandemic will necessarily take the surveillance state to the next level. How can someone write a book in 2012 about the "tech solutions offered to contain the pandemic" when that pandemic only occurred in 2020 ? THE ONLY POSSIBLE ANSWER IS THAT THEY PLANNED IT A LONG TIME AHEAD !

Be sure of that Mr Schwab, I suggest you stick your great reset and 4th industrial revolution where the sun don't shine !

companies will benefit on average from strong tailwinds (most notably tech, health (= Big Pharma) and wellness (What wellness ? This, I think, must serve to give us the impression that there will still be wellness, and in a prominent economic place, but that is incompatible with the horror scenario outlined earlier in this book of hunger, war, very high taxes, except for corporations, and total control of all our movements), the journey will be challenging and sometimes treacherous. For some, like entertainment, travel or hospitality, a return to a pre-pandemic environment is unimaginable in the foreseeable future (and maybe never in some cases...).

For obvious reasons, healthcare is one of the most heavily regulated industries in the world, Really? Is that why you, the elite, with Bill Gates in the lead, insist that the whole world gets injected with a rapidly developed product, never before applied to humans, which has not even really been tested on animals and of which the CDC and the EMA clearly state that it is not certain that it gives any protection against a virus? And which is still in the testing phase until December 2023, automatically reducing billions of people to guinea pigs, and for which no one, including the manufacturers, is willing to assume any liability whatsoever? Is that heavy regulation for obvious reasons?)

It will in turn accelerate the trend towards more wearable and at-home diagnostics, like smart toilets capable of tracking health data and performing health analyses. (Smart toilets, capable of tracking health data ? So that even our excrements will be fully monitored ?)

(complexity brings fragility and often results in instability). Simplification is therefore the antidote, which should in turn generate more resilience. (Exactly! And exactly why it is better for humanity to go from back to basics, to before the era when complex systems, regulations and technology dominated our lives)!

And now Mr. Schwab & Co, the elite, who have become filthy rich from all that kind of practice want us to believe that things will be different in the future? Sorry, I don't buy it.

At rely on gig workers to operate will also feel the effect of more government interference, possibly even to a degree capable of undermining their financial viability. In other words, the events industry, through government interference -and remember that Mr. Schwab is promoting a world government- will ensure that they will no longer be financially viable !

As the pandemic will radically alter social and political attitudes towards gig workers. (i.e., artists and the like) governments will force those companies that employ them to offer proper contracts with benefits such as social insurance and health coverage. (No doubt they are making regulation so extreme that it is impossible to be viable, all means to that end are good, right?) .The labour issue will loom large for them and, if they have to employ gig workers as normal employees, they will cease to be profitable. Their raison d'être might even vanish. Oh no? What a surprise, NOT ! Could it have something to do with the fact that this industry provides art and entertainment, something that people enjoy?

Public pressure for physical distancing will endure until a vaccine is developed and commercialized at scale (which, again, according to most experts, is most unlikely to happen before the first or second quarter of 2021 at the earliest). (So the fear stoked daily by the media and corrupt virologists and politicians must(s) serve to create public pressure to take physical distance, forcing many economic sectors closed, bingo in favor of the multinationals that were technologically prepared. That's 1.

Changing people's behavior is 2.

Holding out to them that this will continue, knowing of course that it is difficult to live with so many restrictions, until the vaccine is there, is 3.

Holding up front the carrot that it will be possible to live normally again once everyone has been vaccinated is 4.

The intention is clearly to be able to inject everyone with that stuff.

Then, in the meantime it's becoming more and more clear, they say they don't know if the vaccine actually protects, is 5.

Consequently, they say they can't relax the measures, that's 6.

Because the economy cannot restart as a result, huge amounts, previously independent people are forced to accept a state bailout, the UBI, that's 7.

Meanwhile, they promote worldwide through media and their political puppets, and even through the Pope, the universal basic income, which is 8.

Receiving that almost every month will be tied to more and more conditions, such as accepting tracing apps, followed by facial recognition everywhere, getting vaccinated, (for which there is already strong pressure by making it clear that those who don't get vaccinated will not be allowed on public transport, airlines, cinemas etc). That is or will be 9.

And what will undoubtedly become 10, is that people who are forced to live on the universal basic income, and thus have no other choice if they want to eat, will also have to give up all their possessions in exchange, first their house and car, because, and this is what all this fear mongering about the environment and climate change is for, we all have to live crammed into a state apartment boxes for this - fake - reason, after which we will also gradually have to give up our furniture and all other personal possessions. Because that's what the promotional video on the website of the World Economic Forum, of which Mr. Schwab is the founder and chairman, was all about. It literally proclaimed that we would "WE WILL OWN NOTHING," and would be very happy.

And then the coup, the power grab, of the elite on all humanity is complete.

DO YOU SEE IT?

For these fundamental reasons, the industries hit the hardest by the pandemic will also be the slowest to recover. (Here, in contrast to earlier references to the final demise of these sectors, the hope is again raised that, albeit slowly, they will still recover. The root of hope held out. If we look back at the past year, we know that this is a tried and tested method, constantly unloading and again attracting, giving hope and then taking it away again. Its purpose is, among other things, to destabilize us mentally so that we are no longer able to think properly, so that they can then delude us into thinking whatever they want and make us accept the greatest nonsense and deprivation of liberty). Hotels, restaurants, airlines, shops and cultural venues in particular will be forced to make expensive alterations ... small businesses will suffer disproportionately, having to walk a very fine line between surviving the closures imposed by the lockdowns (or sharply reduced business) and bankruptcy. Operating at reduced capacity with even tighter margins means that many will not survive. The fallout from their failure will have hard-felt ramifications both for national economies and local communities. Small businesses are the main engine of employment growth and account in most advanced economies for half of all private-sector jobs. (That's why they have to go, of course; those who can be independent don't want that universal basic income, and those who don't depend on it don't give up their possessions. Handy, isn't it, as an invisible enemy, a virus that can't be seen with the naked eye, which people on good faith in the "specialists" have to assume is actually there.... by the way, independent scientific voices see more and more correlation between covid19 symptoms and the approximity of 5G towers, it should be examined.

Behavioural changes – permanent vs transient

Effects on retail, real estate and education. Some behavioural changes observed during the lockdowns are unlikely to be entirely reversed in the post-pandemic era and some may even become permanent.

Nowhere is this reality more apparent than in the real estate industry and, in particular, in commercial real estate. The commercial real estate industry is an essential driver of global growth. Its total market value exceeds that of all stocks and bonds combined globally.

DO YOU SEE IT TOO ? The total market value of commercial real estate exceeds that of worldwide stocks and bonds ! Is that why we will not be allowed to own anything anymore so that they can appropriate EVERYTHING ? If only to be able to brag to each other about who can claim the biggest real estate robbery ? Because ego and megalomania are not in short supply, nor is pure malice. And no, that is not an exaggeration, people who do all this to the world, just because they can, you cannot say anymore that they are anything else than pure devils !

commercial real estate still has much further to fall. The pandemic will do to commercial real estate what it has done to so many other issues (both macro and micro): it will accelerate and amplify the pre-existing trend. The combination of an increase in the number of “zombie” companies (those that use debt to finance more debt and that have not generated enough cash over the past few years to cover their interest costs) going bankrupt and an increase in the number of people working remotely means that there will be far fewer tenants to rent empty office buildings. Property developers (for the most part highly leveraged themselves) will then start experiencing a wave of bankruptcies, with the largest and systemically important ones having to be bailed out by their respective governments. (And so those workers and small independents in the real estate sector can also be funneled back toward universal basic income, and the big ones, those of the rich, are pumped full of taxpayer money again.) In many prime cities around the world, property prices will therefore fall over a long period of time, puncturing the global real estate bubble that had been years in the making.

(In other words, our property, for many ordinary people the only thing of value they have, and for which they have had to pay a lot during many years to Rothschild banks through high interest rates, will no longer be worth anything anyway, we might as well just hand it over, right? Combine that with the earlier mention about land use and you know that we can expect governments to add laws and taxes to ensure that it becomes impossible to keep our houses, no matter if we live in it or rent them to someone.)

To some extent, the same logic applies to residential real estate

The most renowned universities refused to offer virtual degrees, fearful that this might dilute their exclusive offering, ..., many students would not tolerate paying the same high tuition for virtual education, demanding a reduction in fees or deferring their enrolment. In addition, many potential students would question the pertinence of disbursing prohibitive costs for higher education in a world marred by high levels of unemployment. A potential solution could lie in a hybrid model. Universities would then massively expand online education while maintaining an on-campus presence for a different population of students. (So for the rich kids, given that there is talk here of unaffordable -for ordinary people- costs for physical higher education on campus and for “many” and “far fewer” students. Coincidentally for the children of the corporations/multinationals who emerge as winners from this pandemic and for the elite who gather annually in Davos, for Mr. Schwab's conspiracy conference. How coincidental again!)

The question, though, is whether this hybrid model is scalable and reproducible for universities that do not have the resources to invest in technology and in an exclusive library of top-notch content. So, the smaller universities, with fewer resources, would not survive, but the big ones, the most expensive ones, with exclusive libraries, such as no doubt Cambridge and Oxford, where the children of the elite go, would of course have no problem. Again, what a coincidence !

It gives me the strong impression that it will only be the ordinary people who will have to do everything online from their homes, while the rich will be able to continue living offline, in their exclusive gems of, for example, universities in this case, no longer hindered by the presence of the plebs.

the disadvantage of erasing a large aspect of social life and personal interactions on a campus. In the summer of 2020, the direction of the trend seems clear: the world of education, like for so many other industries, will become partly virtual.

*For those fortunate enough to find themselves in industries “naturally” resilient to the pandemic, the crisis was not only more bearable, but even a source of profitable opportunities at a time of distress for the majority. Three industries in particular will flourish (in aggregate) in the post-pandemic era: big tech, health and wellness.

and the need to strengthen our immune system mean that well-being and those sectors of the wellness industry positioned to help deliver them will emerge as strong winners. How ironic ! On that year of forcibly holding us in their plandemic, of deliberately holding people in a fear psychosis daily, they have NEVER talked about the importance of strengthening the immune system as natural protection against ALL disease! But now when it comes to making the sectors of the wellness industry become strong winners, they come up with that! Of course, an industry can't make money from naturally acquired immunity, through sunlight, healthy food, breathing fresh air instead of having to breathe your own carbon dioxide through that mandatory muzzle, and sunlight, and social interaction! No, a good immune system, according to Mr. Schwab, must come from pills and other things sold by the wellness industry. DO YOU SEE IT?

the future of wellness. The combination of AI, the IoT and sensors and wearable technology will produce new insights into personal well-being. They will monitor how we are and feel, and will progressively blur the boundaries between public healthcare systems and personalized health creation systems – a distinction that will eventually break down. Streams of data in many separate domains ranging from our environments to our personal conditions will give us much greater control over our own health and well-being. READ CAREFULLY WHAT IS WRITTEN ABOVE FOLKS !

All that very personal information, about where we are and our personal circumstances, as cited earlier in this book by Mr. Schwab things like our temperature, body functions, as well as our changing moods, will give "us" more control over our health and well-being ! And who do you think "us" means? Considering big tech companies like google and facebook are already doing data mining with everything they can find out about us.... And manipulating us with it, given that at home, near your smartphone, you just have to talk to someone about something that interests you only to find that you suddenly get to see a whole bunch of advertising about exactly that Combine that with the smart-WC's, which we also came across earlier, and you just know that they will even permanently monitor what is in our urine and faeces, just to be sure that there are no residues of some product, which they, via their world government, have decided is forbidden for us to use, and since they increasingly recommend lab-grown fake meat etc., we can expect that even animal proteins will have to be removed from our menu. SO THE TRULY TOTAL CONTROL SOCIETY!

In the post-COVID-19 world, precise information on our carbon footprints, our impact on biodiversity, on the toxicity of all the ingredients we consume and the environments or spatial contexts in which we evolve will generate significant progress in terms of our awareness of collective and individual well-being. Industries will have to take note. (you see!)

The first risk belongs to the category of “traditional” financial risks for which banks have had years to prepare. It is being dealt with through capital and liquidity buffers that have to be robust enough to withstand a major shock. In the case of the COVID-19 crisis, the test of resilience will come when the volume of non-performing loans starts rising.

(So, "the resilience of the (Rothschild) banks will be put to the test when the number of non-performing loans starts to rise" ... So, as I wrote somewhere as before in my comments, so we ordinary people and small businesses, if we want to break the power of the world elite that wants to force us even further and forever to this horror scenario, then we have to massively, worldwide, STOP PAYING TO THEIR SYSTEM ! No more paying off loans, mortgages, no more paying taxes or fines! IF A FEW DO THIS, THEY ARE VERY VULNERABLE, BUT IF WE DO IT MASSIVELY, WORLDWIDE, THEY CAN'T DO US ANYTHING ! They can't throw everyone out of their houses and take everything away from them, because they won't have the money anymore (or at least not for long) to pay bailiffs (who, by the way, will also be out of a job once we "won't own anything anymore and will be happy") and police (who will also be out of a job once we are never allowed outside anymore) etc. to enforce this, and they won't do it for free, especially when they realize that they, and their children, will NEVER BE FREE until the end of time if they cooperate with this.

Okay, I realize that the whole system will crash, but that crash will happen anyway, because it is exactly what Mr. Schwab & Co are also aiming for, although in the opposite way, because now they have been crashing the common people for a year, to be able to push their version of The Great Reset through. By turning it around we can make them crash, so we can realize our version of OUR New World. And in our New World, all good people will be free to live as they please, no longer as slaves in the global money machine either. With fair trade between each other, maximum personal freedom for each one, no more being sucked dry for taxes that are funneled to the rich, etc, etc.

DO YOU SEE IT, DEAR PEOPLE? FEEL THE JOY, BROTHERS AND SISTERS !

(To be clear: please NO VIOLENCE, NO LOOTING, AND NO LYNCH PARTIES ! Violence and riots do not only by definition affect other ordinary people, who are all in the same boat as you and me, it only enables the world elite and their political puppets to send their public and private armies, trained people with weapons, against us, untrained people without weapons, which will ensure that many of us will die when we don't have to!

As for the lynch parties, I can well understand that some people would like to do that, but, if we were to do that, then their armed forces would also come into action, AND, then we wouldn't actually be that much better people as they are, besides the fact that innocent people would possibly be lynched as well, for example because they look like one of the real villains, or because they are supposedly complicit in this whole crime. And that would simply be wrong, if we want to make OUR New World a really good place, then it is of the utmost importance that we take the right decision, step by step, only then will we end up in what we may truly call Paradise on Earth, once the chaos is over and OUR New World has taken its shape.

I have been given the direction for many years, and I will help shape it during the years that I am still allowed to stay on Earth, as best I can, but I can only do that if everyone does his or her utmost to achieve it together. And should it be, that by writing and making all this go viral, I do not live long anymore, because I realize of course that Mr. Global & Co will not thank me for it, with all the risks that entails, then NEVER let the genius back in the bottle, do it without me, for our children, grandchildren and all generations to come, as well as possible! As I have mentioned before, at the bottom of this book, on which I just comment, I will put down the outline of OUR New World, so that everyone can already see the direction, the picture.

Oh yes, before I forget: Since our money will soon be completely worthless, as it happens with a global crash, I recommend everyone to stock up on food and vegetable seeds to bridge the first period, until the seeds have turned into crops, so we have food. Go to the store calmly, no need to panic, don't fight with each other for food, or for toilet paper, after all we will help each other, also with food, through the very first time to survive, what does it matter who can take the last packet in the store ? By the way, buy as much as possible from non-multinationals, start to dry up the big ones already where ever possible.

Buy especially things that store well and don't need to be in the freezer, because considering it's the misters Global & Co who control the electricity companies we can expect an interruption of that, it's obvious they will do EVERYTHING they can think of to force us to surrender to their great reset instead of OUR New World. That doesn't matter, we will all overcome that, the alternative no one will ever overcome, keep that in mind. We better take a short hit, which we can even make very nice, with campfires, candles and oillamps, bbq's and so on... It's also an idea to put on ALL our electric devices to speed things up, so that the power plants, which enables them to do what they, just blow up.... It's not as if we will have to pay for that electricity anymore anyway, no ? We'll reinstall the electricity as soon as possible, don't worry.

Psychologists tell us that cognitive closure often calls for black and-white thinking and simplistic solutions Exactly why you made sure with your psy ops that people suffered massively from it ! – a terrain propitious for conspiracy theories and the propagation of rumours, fake news, mistruths and other pernicious ideas.

This is another magnificent example of the diabolical 180° reversal of reality ! Noticing and examining a real conspiracy, finding mountains of evidence for it, is not a theory, it are facts, facts that the people who had all confidence in you, because good people are rarely capable of believing that there are people who are really so wicked, and who were held in a state of cognitive dissonance by your psy ops, did not want to accept. The "rumors, fake news, falsehoods and other pernicious ideas" you accuse those who saw the truth, are all ABSOLUTELY TRUE ! You were, and still are, at least at this very moment, the ones who constantly engaged in the things you accuse us of ! With your propaganda mouthpieces, which you call reliable news channels, so that good people would believe every word that comes out of them.

And your big tech companies like google and facebook, who, together with the so-called "independent factcheckers", who are all in this together with you, had to make sure that those, meanwhile worldwide several millions of people, who tried to bring out the truth, including many thousands of scientists, doctors and a handful of lawyers, were censored and put in the dunce bin of the conspiracy theorists, the aluhats, in addition to sometimes losing their jobs or licenses, because it is of course convenient if you have things like the lawyers and doctors Bar Association in your pocket.

Big Tech was your strength, with which you could control just about everything, but since we worldwide are/were all locked up at home, did everything online, that has also become your weakness, for it is thanks to the internet and social media that we were able to unite worldwide, hand each other over irrefutable pieces of the puzzle, which were then put in place in our heads and stored on many computers worldwide as evidence against all of you, that we unmasked you all step by step.

As it is described in the Bible, we have "defeated the devil with his own weapons" !

And that this CAN'T be a conspiracy theory, that has been proven by your book, Mr. Schwab, which I have unraveled with the help of God, and through which now ANYONE, worldwide, because of course we make this, using our online networks, go viral in many languages at once, will finally know what REALLY is the truth!

decisions framed as “cold” and rational, driven exclusively by economic, political and social considerations, are in fact deeply influenced by moral philosophy – the endeavour to find a theory that is capable of explaining what we should do.

Actually, almost every single decision related to how best to deal with the pandemic could be reframed as an ethical choice, reflecting that, in almost all instances, human practices labour under moral considerations. Shall I give to those who have nothing and show empathy to those whose opinion differs from mine? Is it all right to lie to the public for some greater good? Mr Schwab & Co clearly have no problem with that !

(that can be expressed through elections), (yeah, right, especially since elections only give an illusion of choice anyway, since all the puppet players are in the pocket of the elite anyway, so there are only apparent, but no real differences, in their policies. And if not, they always have the voting computers, with which it is easy to achieve a victory, as has been the case for many years in many countries.)

The consequences, particularly in terms of unemployment, would be horrific, resulting in a dramatic fallout for society's poorest, and individual well-being in general.

For months, COVID-19 became almost the only news, news that was inevitably almost exclusively bad. Relentless reports of deaths, infectious cases and all the other things that might go wrong, together with emotionally charged images, allowed our collective imaginations to run riot in terms of worry about ourselves and our closest loved ones. Such an alarming atmosphere had disastrous effects on our mental well-being. So Mr. Schwab knows exactly what kind of mental state they have put people in, how they would react psychologically to the relentless flow of fake news and inflated numbers, that comes out very clearly here.

Furthermore, media-amplified anxiety can be very contagious. !!! ☹ ☹ ☹ All this fed into a reality that for so many amounted to personal tragedy, whether defined by the economic impact of income loss and job losses and/or the emotional impact of domestic violence, acute isolation and loneliness or the inability to properly grieve for deceased loved ones. Humans are inherently social beings. Companionship and social interactions are a vital component of our humanness. If deprived of them, we find our lives turned upside down. Social relations are, to a significant extent, obliterated by confinement measures and physical or social distancing and, in the case of the COVID-19 lockdowns, this occurred at a time of heightened anxiety when we needed them most. Rituals that are inherent to our human condition – handshakes, hugs, kisses and many others – were suppressed. Loneliness and isolation resulted. Remember that we have already read in previous chapters that Mr. Schwab wants to make this permanent !

For now, we know neither whether nor when we might return completely to our old way of life.

Just now he said that this will never be the case, that even in the post-pandemic world we would have to telecommute, study and play sports remotely, etc., that small businesses would never recover economically because, for example, we would never be able to go out to restaurants again but only have the food delivered to our homes by drone, idem for groceries, etc., but now mainly for environmental reasons!

...magnified existing abusive behaviours, leaving little or no respite for victims and their children outside of the home. Projections from the United Nations Population Fund indicate that if domestic violence increases by 20% during periods of lockdown, there would be an additional 15 million cases of intimate partner violence in 2020 for an average lockdown duration of three months, 31 million cases for an average lockdown of six months, 45 million for an average lockdown of nine months, and 61 million if the average lockdown period were to last one year. These are global projections, inclusive of all 193 UN Member States, and represent the high levels of underreporting characteristic of gender-based violence.

Is it just me, who gets a sense in this that Mr Schwab & Co not only don't care but they even take pleasure in it ? It seems like he is even bragging about it !

In my view, people really don't become happier by constantly being monitored on every level, by not being able to decide for themselves how they maintain which social contacts, what they do or don't do to earn their living, etc., etc.

The underlying argument supporting this hypothesis is the one to which we referred in the chapter on the environmental reset: the pandemic has acted as a dramatic eye-opener to the public at large on the severity of the risks related to environmental degradation and climate change. Heightened awareness of and acute concerns about inequality, combined with the realization that the threat of social unrest is real, immediate and on our doorstep, might have the same effect. strive for more happiness. This is where the master manipulator comes in again, the environmental reset is deposited as fact in our brains, then we are reminded of the pandemic, then the word "dramatic" is planted in our subconscious, the word "risks ", "environmental degradation " (again), and the word "climate change". All words that, because of all that he wrote about it before and have been instilled in us for many years through their media and other accomplices as summarized: very unsettling.

Then he goes on to use the word "combination" to ensure the combination of all these things in our subconscious, the words "threat", "social unrest", real" to stick in our subconscious that it is all "real", followed by the word "immediate", "at our doorstep, and then ending with the claim that all these things "could have the same effect, strive for more happiness."

DO YOU SEE IT, DEAR PEOPLE? How are our brains being fiddled with in a diabolical way ?

Think of the slogans on the World Economic Forum film "you'll own nothing, but will be happy."

I cited somewhere earlier in this writing that the elite wanted to take away ALL our possessions, right ?

We seem to be born to run in the rat race of working full time, making sure they always have clean clothes etc. to be able to do that work, racing to bring their children to daycare and/or school before and after that work, because that is simply compulsory and doesn't go differently when you have to work whole days from morning to evening? Except for those few weeks of vacation per year, which you then usually use to do all the things, chores, etc., that you otherwise just never get around to? And/or because you haven't been able to save the money to travel during the year, because "life" has become so expensive due to high prices for everything and endless taxes? And/or because you are lonely, even if you have a partner and/or family? Because, of course, they are all busy fulfilling their role in the rat race, the partner is physically and/or mentally too tired from all that to give you real, instead of superficial attention, possibly worried about how to keep up with all those demands, all those payments to be made that keep coming through the mailbox, and the fact that, in that way, life goes by at a rocket speed without, you having the possibility to really enjoy it, and to develop your inner self?

And the children? They are flown to daycare from, in the best case, the third month of life, because their mother's maternity leave is over and only rich men's wives can afford to stay home with the children, because "the flow of bills constantly have to be taken care off" ... While an baby, according to nature, should be with it's mother, beeing constantly in contact with her to be fed and be safe is already abruptly and quasi daily torn away from the mother, left in the hands of strangers, wich sometimes even took a job in that sector to be able to do the most horrible thing with children, who then take "care" for it, by feeding them unnatural and chemical fake milk every so often. As a result, babies very often experience fear, even if they are so lucky not to be sexually abused, have to live in the unnatural rhythm of the rat race from as young as only a few months old, and are stuffed full of chemicals wich are called babymilk, instead of immune-enhancing mother's milk.

And this continues until they go to elementary school and become more independent. By then, of course, a lot of damage has been done in the very fragile, young souls . Besides school they have to be able to do activities, because the perception is created through media etc. that this is how it should be, and since everyone has come to believe that this is normal, you are an outsider or even a loser if you don't participate, so the pressure is high. And just going outside to play is rarely an option anymore, there is no time for it, no nature anymore, and because of the sick world we all live in it is also not safe anymore, because you could just be picked up by people who wants to harm you in the most horrible way imaginable.... And when you go to secondary school, not only do you have to spend almost full time at school, sitting in a chair all day absorbing often mind-numbing learning material, obeying a tired and sometimes true asshole of a teacher, after which, you also have to do many hours of homework every day, preparing for tests, etc. In addition, you often have to find a vacation job, because your parents barely manage to pay the high cost of living and the never-ending stream of bills, so there is not much left over for anything extra, and you also want something, like doing horse-riding, skate, purchase the music you like at any given age, and have a nice smartphone and clothes, which you and your friends are constantly reminded of through advertising that you need to be a normal person in today's society. And nobody wants to be an outsider....

And so it goes on, until you graduate and start working, get a family, and the whole cycle repeats itself, until you, old and completely worn out, can retire, and a few years later go to the retirement home, if you, because of all the poisons you get through sprayed food, cleaning product and so on, chemicals they call medication, and which you had to take every time you were sick because you had to be able to participate in the rat race as soon as possible instead of just getting well on a natural speed, the constant struggle through the rat race and so many other things, at least get that old.

And then there's the retirement-homes, where for you need to pay so much every month, that most people can't afford to pay for it of the pension, for which you had to give to the government somewhat half your wage each month during your entire working life, so that the little money you might have been able to save up to leave to your children is also gone before you die, and for which, in the case you didn't see possibility to make some savings, your children, who don't have much of a life nor money themselves, are forced to have to pay a part of the bill, while you barely get a pamper a day, because diapers are expensive, and the nursing home don't want to spend more than a few dollars or euros a day on your behalf, including your food, and because, of budget cuts, there is not enough staff to help everyone regularly to the toilet, not that you're incontinent, you just can't get up out of your chair on your own anymore, because your body is worn out from all those years of hard working, so you often have to sit in your feces for a half or whole day, while you wait for the not seldom redeeming death, the only way out of this hell, and for which, when you finally die, a fortune also has to be paid for your funeral, however modest it may be, because there are price agreements between the funeral homes to make sure that you don't get away with any really cheaper option, and the state (Belgium anyway), even on the absolutely unavoidable parts of it, like cremation or burial, takes 21% VAT, just to milk you out one last time, not counting taxes on the inheritance you leave, if there is any.

What a beautiful world it was already before the pLandemic, wasn't it?

And are the same people who have created that system, who made the world that way for a long time, are now going to force us, and through an extremely criminal plan, to go along with what's coming out of their quiver now to a world where we are even no longer allowed anything at all that can make us happy, where everything is constantly monitored by them, where we are no longer allowed to own anything, forced, under the threat of imprisonment if we don't comply, of a new world order, which they call government, and over which we have no say?

And that same fate, if not even worse with the progressing of time, would be for our children for life, and their children, if they are still allowed to have them by the world leaders? Or even have to have to have them, to be forced to give them away for adoption to the rich and powerful, as in the Handmaids tale? Because the reference to that book / that series in Mr Schwab's book is, in my opinion, also a matter of predictive programming, announcing a already planned crime, because that is the rule according in the satanic cult, and it's no coincidence either that Jill Biden, for the inauguration of sleepy Joe, which I call the senile pedophile by the way, was wearing exactly the same outfit as the commander and other powerful men's wives in the Handmaids tale...

I DON'T THINK SO !!

One clear message has emerged from this: nature is a formidable antidote to many of today's ills. Yes, that is why, among other things, they want to deny it to us by keeping us locked up forever surely? Recent and abundant research explains incontrovertibly why it is so. But we are required to do this at a distance of less than one and half a meter from each other (for tracking purposes), with a muzzle on our face, so without being able to breathe in fresh air, even during sports. And this would be out of concern for our health?

...immunity and inflammation. Both contribute to protecting us, but immunity decreases with age, while inflammation increases. To improve our chances of resisting the virus, immunity must be boosted and inflammation suppressed. What part does nature play in this scenario? She is the leading lady, the science now tells us! Now? Really? It is something that everyone has known for a long time, even without being a scientist, more than that, I would even dare to say that every human knows this instinctively! The ...alleviate inflammation by lowering cytokine levels (a marker of inflammation).

Here I am just about falling backwards from the cynicism level ! I cannot give you the completely exact scientific explanation of this, because I am neither a doctor nor a scientist, but the doctors and scientists whom I had asked to give me all the scientific information to include to this book, among wich Professor Dolores Cahill, Dr Judy Mickovitch and Dr Carrie Madej are busy irrefutably proving all the scientific lies in the statements of Mr Schwab & Co ,are warning us that the so called coronavaccine is exactly causing cytokine storms! I'm sure that Mr Schwab & Co, and especially the big vaccine pusher and shareholder, the self-proclaimed philanthropist, Mr Bill Gates, know that very well.

I THEREFORE ACCUSE THESE “PEOPLE” AND ALL THEIR ACCOMPLICES, WORLDWIDE, WITH CONSPIRACY, UNLAWFUL DEPRIVATION OF LIBERTY, ATTEMPTED GENOCIDE AND GENOCIDE!

JE VOUS ACCUSE !

All this boils down to lifestyle choices: not only the time we spend in nature, but also what we eat, how we sleep, how much we exercise. These are choices that point to an encouraging observation: age does not have to be a fatality. Dear people, REMEMBER THIS SENTENCES VERY WELL, at the very end of this book, you will know why he writes this... Ample research shows that together with nature, diet and physical exercise can slow, even sometimes reverse, our biological decline. There is nothing fatalistic about it! Exercise, nature, unprocessed food... They all have the dual benefit of improving immunity and suppressing inflammation.

Unprocessed food is something I wanted to touch on, how many years has it been that small organic farmers have been made virtually impossible to work in many ways, through government regulations, through downright dirty competition tricks from the industrial agricultural sector? So that the availability to buy organic food for the masses is almost zero? So they must get all their food from the supermarket, which means the industrial agricultural sector? Which, besides the fact that several of those products are genetically modified, also means that they are all poisoned with artificial instead of natural fertilizer, and glyphosate, an extremely dangerous herbicide, like the well known ROUNDUP, which does not only end up on, but, through absorption through the roots, also in the structure of crops!

And who produces these poisons? The same ones who produce genetically modified crops, which are among other things sterile so that poor farmers have to buy new seeds every year, namely MONSANTO! (And in which, by the way, Bill Gates owns a large amount of shares) Monsanto, a few years ago officially taken over by BAYER ! And what is BAYER ? BAYER, like BASF, is a post-war spin-off of IG-FARBEN, the company responsible during WWII for the production of the poison gas, the Zyklon B, with which millions of Jews and others, mainly gypsies and artists, were murdered. And MONSANTO was, among other things, also the producer of AGENT ORANGE, the poison that was spread in extreme quantities over Vietnam, and which today, still causes children to be born with disabilities! And these are the ones who produce our food, in the hands of the same world elite as Mr Schwab and his masters, and of whom our politicians are puppets, they make sure that all this can be done legally!

And that is what we are supposed to trust? Believe them at their word that the virus is an accident, and that the measures are there to protect us, including the total destruction of the small economy? Do you now understand why the big ones, the multinationals, are not affected by the pandemic, at least not in a negative sense?

And why I am so angry that I have decided, regardless of the risk I run in doing so, to finally, and once and for all, stop these criminals with all the means at my disposal?

This is not a “nice-to-have” but an absolute necessity. You can say that alright ! Failing to address and fix the deep-rooted ills of our societies and economies... Well, Mr Schwab, rest assured, the most deep-seated illness of our societies and economies is about to be addressed.

And as far as I am concerned, you and your friends, after a fully correct and transparent people's tribunal of course, if found guilty beyond all doubt, will be sent to hell, where your master awaits you !

Will we learn from the mistakes we made in the past?

No doubt, Mr. Schwab. And we will make sure that "people" like you will NEVER again have the chance to do something like that to us and our planet again, and that includes everything that you have already done before the pLandemic, as well as since you started executing the last step of your diabolical plan. And rest assured that for you it has indeed been the last step, for us, however, it is the first step towards a wonderful New World!

However, at a global level, if viewed in terms of the percentage of the global population effected, the corona crisis is (so far) one of the least deadly 188 pandemics the world has experience over the last 2000 years. READ

CAREFULLY PEOPLE, WHAT MR SCHWAB WRITES ABOVE ! COVID19 IS ONE OF THE LEAST DEADLY PANDEMICS THE WORLD HAS SEEN IN 2000 YEARS, LET GO OF YOUR FEAR, AND LIVE, LIVE and LOVE LIFE WITH A HUGE L !

(at a time when the outbreak is still raging in Latin America, South Asia and much of the US), COVID-19 has killed less than 0.006% of the world population. (Less than 0.006% !!!) To put this low figure into context in terms of lethality, the Spanish flu killed 2.7% of the world's population and HIV/AIDS 0.6% (from 1981 to today). The Plague of Justinian from its onset in until it finally disappeared in killed almost one-third of the population of Byzantium according to various estimates, and the Black Death (1347-1351) is considered to have killed between 30% and 40% of the world population at the time.

The corona pandemic is different. It does not constitute an existential threat, Dear people, please let this document go viral as hard as possible, until everyone around the world has it ! Have it translated and printed in a bookform on whatever scale !

With love, for my child first and foremost, then for all other children in the world, both those already born and those yet to be born, for all adults, without any distinction, for our beautiful Mother Earth and all of her creatures, and all life beyond this planet.

OUR New World !

While the old world is creaking at the seams, we have been living under the siege of the elite for over ten months. They want to reduce the world's population to the maximum with the help of Big Pharma, corrupt politicians, media, virologists and the like and plan to make the rest of us cyborg slaves or transhumanists.

I am given the divine mission to participate in the New World, to help shape it in The Diven's own way.

What an assignment! I can only promise you that I will try to fulfill it to the very best of my ability ...

What exactly God is to me, I'll tell you first ... because many of us have an aversion to the word "God", and we don't believe in His Existence ... and that is caused by have been lied to for many generations, indoctrinated without us realizing it, which makes it clear how successful this indoctrination is ...

First of all, I just want to say that I know that in our perception this comes across as insane, but it is the truth....apparently religions, which after all have existed all over the world for many thousands of years, knew all of this already.... it is only we, the "modern", but actually blunted, conditioned human generation, who no longer know what is true, we have brought to think that we know better than to believe that "nonsense" This is because through education and TV, and from there on through social pressure, we have all come to believe in what we were spoon-fed as truths through those ways.

A clever trick of the devil, makes mankind believe that God does not exist, because, if God doesn't exist, then the devil also doesn't exist I myself fell into it for 50 years too, now I can't deny it's realGod, or whatever you want to call that Entity, has personally assured me of his authenticity, and in a way that I had to accept it, even though my ratio struggled with it for weeks ...

I will try to make it visible ... First of all, God, the word, the name, is just something that was once chosen by people to make clear what exactly is being referred to ... Just as everyone knows what we mean with the word “chair”, because imagine that otherwise you would have to say "the thing that usually, but not always, has 4 legs and stands at a table, usually to sit on when you eat" ... And that's a simple, plain visible thing to point to, where God, is the Ultimate Abstract.

What do we all know ? We know that the entire Universe was created from energy, and that energy splits, collides, transforms, expands, shrinks and materializes, but never disappears. We also know that the Earth is a living planet, it moves, bubbles, and has many forms of natural energetic radiation and other energy forms. We also know that the little wheels of life on Earth are extremely complex and fit together perfectly, one animal lives from and often on and in other animals, fungi, plants, etc... We also know that all those organisms are particularly complex and refined, just look at microscope pictures of insects, or the behavior of ants, fish schools and all others ...

We all know from ourselves that we are very complex and unique beings, not only the body but also the mind and Soul, with many layers through and in each other.... We know that animals too are all unique individuals, each one with its own character, personality and consciousness. Even plants have been found to have consciousness, so we may conclude that everything that lives has consciousness.

We also know that we are barely beginning to understand all of those earthly complexities, let alone that we can match them, no matter how intelligent we as humans/humans think we are, our most modern technology still doesn't nearly match nature ...

So the “thing” that designed all that into that enormous complexity so that it could evolve into what we know today MUST be something incredibly intelligent, of a magnitude that our minds can hardly comprehend ...

We also know that there are other planets and stars besides the Earth, the most familiar ones to us are the ones we see every day, namely the Sun, of which we know that it enables all life on Earth to exist, by providing the right temperature, through photosynthesis, without which nothing can grow... We also know, for example, that it is through the Sun that we get vitamin D, essential for health.

There is also the Moon, of which in any case we know that she also has an influence on Earth, for example, she is responsible for ebb and flow, spring tides and menstrual cycles, many women always menstruate at full moon, worldwide.... and we all know that the menstrual cycle has directly to do with our reproductive ability and thus with the creation of new Life...

In addition, we know that there are other planets and stars in our solar system that we know relatively little about today, e.g. Mars, Venus, Neptune, etc ... All are together with other star systems in what we call our Milky Way.... And we also know that there are many Milky Ways, many galaxies etc ... and they are all together in what we call the Universe Since we hardly know anything about the influence of the Moon and the Sun on our existence, but already know that those influences are undeniable, we can imagine that all planets have an influence on each other, known to us or not. It also makes it clear that we, Earthlings, are part of the cosmos, the Whole Universe... Consequently, we may assume that, just as here on Earth, with the influences of the Sun and the Moon, just as everything we know on Earth fits perfectly together, this is also the case for and in the entire Cosmos, right?

And when we accept that all life, however small, in the microcosmic sense has consciousness, then we can also assume that the same is true in the macrocosmic sense, right ? For the Earth, our Mother, which gives birth and nourishes all life known to us, that is also a living planet, isn't she? And the Sun, which is also alive, sends out solar flares and winds, sends out electromagnetic radiation and has ever-changing coronaholes.. So we may assume that all other planets are also alive, whether we know them or not, whether we have been told they are dead planets or not ... and that the same is true for the galaxy in which these planets and stars are located ... and for the Universe, or even Universes, which in each case are the overarching body in which everything else is located.... Well, the ALL overarching organ, a conscious Living Entity thus, of that ALL, the HOLY ALL, that is what is called "God". And ALL living beings are cells of His/Her body, which means that God is also a part of ALL existing Life.

And now I hear you coming off ... If God exists, how could He/She/It (we'll just keep calling God "Him", since we don't know that) allow so much misery on Earth for so long, if He really is an omnipotent entity, consciousness, why didn't He intervene much earlier? Well, that's exactly why I didn't believe in the existence of a God for 50 years either ... There are reasons for this, you can study the story of Adam and the impregnation of Eve, and the role of the serpent, it has to do, among other things, with the fact that under God, who is the supreme entity, other entities exist, in different dimensions of time and space...and as Albert Einstein said, time and space are relative. What is certain is that there is also a demonic entity, which is responsible for the fact that we all have Good and evil within us. Something, in which all humans at all times, are able to choose in, which one they follow, at any given time.

God does not divide either, nor does He do religions, these are things of men, who therefore all have both Good and evil in them. What are considered holy books by religions are texts written by people who had a higher than average contact with God. The fact that they are different has to do with the fact that this information is very abstract for humans, so the invisible must be made visible, and this for peoples with different cultures at different times in human history. Also, throughout the ages, these texts have not always been interpreted and translated correctly, and even purposely limited and changed by devil worshippers to a selection of what they thought we were allowed to know, the library of the vatican would contain all true and complete information, part of which would come from the library of Alexandria, where it was removed from it before they burned the rest of it down to ensure that humanity would never have that knowledge. The division of people into religions, which concludes in certain parts hateful speech, is a devil's bargain, divide and conquer.

So it does not matter what religion a person adheres to, as long as the intention of the person is Good, with a heart full of Love, because that is God, the purest Love as energy in its purest form. He also does not ask to pray, to speak to Him, according to a certain pattern, the only command is that it comes sincerely from the heart. He doesn't ask for temples either, nothing of material splendor, His temple is Mother Nature, Life itself, and He asks only to honor that.

Under no circumstances does He want a third temple to be built in Jerusalem ever, because it will be presented as a temple to honor God but in reality it will be in honor of Lucifer, the fallen angel. Through this ruse, the beast still wants to obtain the power over the Earth at the last moment. The false messiah will also be recognizable from the desire to build this temple.

God explicitly asks ALL people to make sure that this temple will NEVER be built, under no circumstances!

Insights that have been passed on

- That all people are equal.
- That everyone and anyone's work, input, arguments and vision should be respected.
- That no one has to make decisions for one other.
- That when it does occur, you should not allow it, more so, if you do allow it, then the other knows that he or she will get away with it, and so will repeating such behavior instead of unlearning it....
- That cosmic laws apply always and everywhere in the cosmos ...

- That when someone does something that is not okay, you may scale up your reaction until the person stops doing whatever it is that is wrong. And how do you do that? By making it clear, if necessary, that if that person doesn't stop doing whatever it is that's not okay, you're going to do something that that person doesn't like at all and then it's up to that person to decide if they want to take that risk ... This is called a threat and is a mere warning that certain consequences will follow if wrong behavior is continued.

Politics, the system:

What have we been able to observe for many years about politics, politicians etc ?

- That it gives some power over many, even all....
- That we are given the illusion of choice, but that all roll out the same agenda, subject to an apparent personal touch here and there, to maintain the illusion of differences....
- That having different political parties, with their apparent contradictions, also serves to keep people divided, e.g. by left-right contradictions ...
- That we are made to believe we have choice, but that all the puppets in the great puppet show are pre-selected, so that in the end it doesn't matter who we vote for....
- That voting computers are used to cheat, to make sure that when someone really presents a different and independent thing for society, the computer programs will make sure that this will not happen....
- That politicians are members of political parties, which in reality are crime cartels, dressed in fancy expensive suits, driving fancy cars and speaking in fancy phrases, to create and maintain the appearance of poshness and solidity, dignity etc. ...

- That these parties and politicians serve themselves generously and abundantly at the expense of the suffering people, who are caught in a rat race to satisfy all the needs and conditions for being allowed to exist in a society created by politicians, banks and multinationals. Because if you don't, they will take everything away from you, until you end up homeless somewhere with an empty stomach....

We don't need that, in fact it is highly undesirable !

We need a set of general rules, rules that make sense to everyone, that everyone can actually agree on and actually no one can have anything against, except those who have bad intentions, and we are NOT, NEVER, going to let them determine what the world is going to look like again from now on !

This is something we good people ALL together can take care of and ensure that it can never take root again, throughout time, at any time, anywhere, from generation to generation.

Through the Internet, for example, we can vote in a fair way, one vote per person, of course voluntarily, for ideas to shape the New World, without the intervention of politicians or parties. No masters, no slaves ...

Rules should be as limited and simple as possible, guaranteeing maximum personal freedom for all, they should be based on respect for every living being, human and non-human. Legislation may not be so complex and extensive that you need a lawyer to wrap your head around it, that in the maze of laws and regulations, back doors can be built in that no one notices because they are so complex and written in such language that no one understands what it actually says and therefore can no longer see the wood through the trees. These are all old tricks of devil worshippers, for all these things there is no place in the New World.

For example, what can those laws be? Do no harm is the first rule. Don't do anything to another that you don't want to be done to you yourself...and that should be applied in all aspects of life, and on every scale....

An example to make it visible ...

Suppose you live near a river that provides humans and animals with clean drinking water and fish, would you want a company to settle somewhere along that river that puts its waste into the river, making the water dirty, smelly and toxic? So that nobody can drink, eat or swim in it anymore? Would you be okay with someone appropriating a part of that river, determining that they have more right to it than others ? Or would you want all creatures to be able to enjoy and use it without completely ruining it for everyone else ? Well then, you know exactly what you can and cannot do with the river, and what everyone should make sure that those who have a harder time with these basic rules also respect them.

And if basic rules are broken, what do you do?

You do what you have to do, in a constructive way, until it stops. You don't accept what is not acceptable, no matter how small or big, because it always starts with something small ... And you say to stop with whatever it is, clearly stating why. This should be enough, because the person who commits the sin may not do it consciously, but rather because of the lack of thought of the consequences of his own action... But if you see that this person does know and understand, but consciously chooses not to care, then you have to come up with something else. This can range from consulting with the community you're part of to determine what the solution might be, to immediately tying up the wrongdoer to prevent him or her from causing further damage in the meantime, depending on the nature and persistence of the violation of the ground rules. You can, for example, never allow someone to damage another living being.

And then it has to go to a court, a body that objectively judges what should be done with that person to unlearn the bad behavior or if that is not possible, outright prevent them from ever doing it again....

Courts and legal systems in the New World.

We all know that people are not perfect, that a verdict can depend on whether the judge is having a good or bad day, is a truly Good person or not, on whether he or she has connections with the offender himself, loved ones or other stakeholders of the offender... or with the act itself... That it may depend on whether the face and appearance of the offender elicits sympathy or dislike from the judge, possibly influenced by the thickness of the offenders' wallet and the willingness to give a judge a portion of that in order to obtain a favorable verdict ...

So there we can use technology, AI, artificial intelligence.... It can make judgments according to logarithms and also provide solutions that are always the same for everyone, according to all the data, in complete objectivity, And if someone feels they have been wrongly judged, they can always appeal, and ask for a human court of law... which will of course consist of ordinary honest people, for example from the community where the crime took place, and who will decide to the best of their ability, in good conscience, whether they follow the decision of the AI court or see an alternative and better solution.

Justice should also not necessarily be a matter of punishment, the preference should always be to make people see the error of their doing. That insight, and genuine repentance are more important than mere punishment.... All these things can be done through AI, as well as automatically graduating financial penalties according to the wealth of the offender.

It should also be clearly determined what we consider to be capital sins, and sins as such, and what possible solutions and/or punishments we want to see associated with them....

For example:

Pedophilia

Whoever commits inappropriate acts towards children not only allows the ultimate evil in himself, but also plants it in the person to whom he or she does it... The damage of this is so enormous that it continues even for many generations ... it threatens the young person to the very core, the Soul ... What is to be done with such perpetrators once guilt has been established indisputably and beyond all doubt ? It is evil in the purest sense, to do to someone, a pure, innocent and extremely vulnerable young life something that you know will cause lifelong damage ... Someone who chooses to do that to another is betraying Life, are they themselves still worthy of Life ? All such things should be deliberated and ultimately voted on.

(This is a part that i'm sliding in, written on february 14th, Valentine's day, after which i'll continue with the earlier written sketch.) Here we go, no matter how difficult it is...

The cabal/illuminati, the satanists...those are, among other things, pedophiles... Their cultus is s that, since many thousands of years, next to purely pedophillian actions, they torture especcially children (and offcourse adults too) untill death follows.

Concerning the children, it is so that when they are being extremely tortured, they produce just before death, a very high quality of andrenachrome, which is a by-product of adrenaline. The younger the victim, the higher the quality. It's what literally is called the fountain of youth. (Remember the sentences in Mr Schwab's book I asked you to remember, about reversing age, and age not being a fatality.) It also gives users a huge kick in the brain, which enables them to have intensified contact with the universe and the entity they serve, literally the devil

It's also so that andrenachrome reduces age in such a way that users need it constantly, if they don't get the substance for a few days, the elder and die within days. It also exists in synthetic form, expired Epi-pens, a drug against severe allergic reactions. It's up to all of us to decide if we give them expired Epi-pens so that they can stand trial or not.

There are herbal ways to be easier able to have contact with the Universe and all what lives there, beyond our usual view, but just as real. That's why the cabal made these herbs illegal to us, to prevent the people from getting in contact with the Universe and ALL that lives there in a Good way, without harming anyone, which then enhances the contact with God instead of the devil. So that we wouldn't get to know that we are ever-living Souls who reside in a temporary meatsuit. For the same reason, the cabal has, since it exists, put fluoride in our tap water, just like in toothpaste, which we use daily and where it is immediately absorbed by our salivary glands. The same for chewing gum and for pills like Zymaflour, sold upon us to so called making sure our children's teeth are healthy. Fluoride blocks the working of the pineapple gland, the organ in our brain that enables contact with the Universe, and thus also God.

(After this, off course, I find it difficult to continue with what I wrote before regarding OUR New World, but I'll do it anyway, because it's so important.)

And what about the gang of criminals who together form the NWO, new world order, which are not all members at that level of the cabal, but mostly ingorend of that, just corrupted people? Those who, on any level and in any role, have consciously participated and collaborated to carry out the plan ? A plan to murder billions of people and turn the rest into cyborg slaves forever? A plan that now, on 09/12/2020, has already caused many victims worldwide ? By deliberately making people sick, denying them proper treatment and at the same time making them undergo highly invasive and a not infrequently deadly treatment ? That have made billions of people sick with fear and from deliberately releasing extremely harmful 5G electromagnetic radiation as well as a virus, whether or not it exists, which appears still not to be isolated? Locked people up in homes and made them die in loneliness, elderly people whose children and grandchildren were not even allowed to be with tem during their last days and hours so that they could pass the barrier to the hereafter in peace of mind? Without support, without farewell, without a last show of Love? Who were sometimes put into body bags during their lives so that they only had to be zipped shut once their last breath had been taken? Who deliberately killed small independent businesses with their measures, to condemn them to begging so that they would accept everything out of dependency, including the so-called vaccine for which many independent scientists worldwide are warning?

Is life worth living for people who knowingly collaborate in such atrocities?
So these are issues we all have to decide together

Further, what kind of solutions or punishments might be appropriate for what kind of societal problems or crimes ? These are thinking exercises that we can all, individually and together, make, putting forward ideas and possible solutions, which can then be further debated together in order to arrive at the best possible decisions in which actually everyone can agree and then submit them for voting by referendum.

That is how the New World will work We make it all together, to the best of our ability!

Some examples of things that need to be reconsidered :

Prostitution, the oldest profession in the world.

Is there anything wrong with someone deciding for him- or herself to exchange his own sexual services for something else? No, because everyone always has free choice over their own body and their own actions.

What is wrong, is that someone, in order to survive, to feed the children for example, is forced to make such a choice, because then, there is no real free choice. Pimping, wanting to enrich oneself by coercing or emotionally manipulating another in any way, that is wrong though, because it violates the basic rule "do no harm."

Porn Production.

There is much to be said about porn, in itself it can be said that watching porn does not harm anyone as long as all the actors are adults and participate voluntarily. On the other hand, pornography seems to cause bad social problems, and this because the unnatural is presented as being normal, for example adults without pubic hair and women who have had their labia minora removed, which, even unconsciously, creates a connotation in the mind of the viewer with children, in whom these things are not yet present, and that is unhealthy and puts children at risk.

It also shifts the norm from the natural to the unnatural, and there's something wrong with that, because it also often leaves men unable to appreciate the natural, which puts children in danger and make that natural women feel compelled to imitate that false ideal in order to circumvent this thus-created brainwashing.

In addition, the porn industry also thrives on exploitation, which violates the "don't do anything to another person that you yourself don't want done to you" basic rule.

Next to that, it's often the same infrastructure which is used to make childporn.

Lying

Lying, the deliberate telling of anything other than the truth.... something that scammers, politicians and, as we now all know, large corporations and media engage in, with enormous consequences. What do we do with that in the New World? I would also like to stipulate that lying is something that dishonest people do, those driven by the dark powers of the Universe. People of God, the purest Love, don't lie. (They even simply just can't) It's a marker that enables us to distinguish who has chosen which one of those two powers.

Money and Economy in the New World

A medium of exchange is also needed in the New World. ... What actually determines the value we attach to something ? Surely the demand for it and its availability, its supply ? There are blockchain systems such as bitcoins, QFS and the like that can be used alongside a form of cash.

This can be done without, at least in their current form, banks imposing their requirements on people to be able to use them ... such as sky-high interest rates with which they can cause inflation, deflation and recession and crisis at will, with which they can keep the whole world in their grip... In the old days in Africa a certain type of shell was used as money, all that is needed to trade is that everyone accepts the medium of exchange.

Money should be again a medium of exchange, nothing more. Through digital wallets, everyone can be remunerated for any work and any contribution to something so that it circulates from one to another, without being hoarded at some point by those who have so much of it that they don't need it for anything and consequently withdrawn it from the circulation chain.

In addition, immeasurable amounts of money are available if we strip the very rich and their company's, those who are ultimately trying to carry out this attempted for global genocide, of their money and property and put it into circulation for the benefit of the whole world's population and the creation of our New World.

How much money and other valuables would the rockefellers, rothschilds, warren buffet, georges soros, bill gates etc and all the multinational corporations and other organizations participating in this together own ? Enough, no ? So that, worldwide, EACH ONE, gets an equal share to start with in our New world.

And how and when do you charge someone with something, and when do you give to something or someone , when not, and how much ? Because everyone has to eat and be able to buy the necessary things

(In the meanwhile, i'm getting through that God, or Source, or whatever name you want to give Him, wants us to evolve to a world without money, because "for money, the devil's dance", but I don't know yet how we can do that, we'll undoubtedly figure that out with God help, but with what is existing and obtained by the cabal and their fellow corrupted, we have plenty to use while we evolve to a money free world.

And from the satanists houses, castles and so on, we can make musea, where everything what is in there can be exposed, explained what it is, the origin of it, the occult or not purpose of it, and the whole truth, so that everyone, generation after generation, how and what exactly happened and for which signs and symbols they have to be aware.

Does that sounds good ?

Concerning trading and exchanging.

The Rule is that no one should exploit or take advantage of another person's arts, skills and natural goodness or weakness.

You may ask someone to help you with something ... as long as it does not require too much time or effort and only occurs sporadically, that is natural, and we are here to help each other ... service and return, pay it forward etc ...

That is all good, even if there is no chance that you will ever receive a favour in return from that person or living being, we are still there to help each other, that gives a good feeling, and building up good karma is also important. Of course, people can also choose to complete projects together selflessly, that's also the New World, the freedom to make those kinds of choices!

But if you regularly have to ask others to do something for you because you can't do it yourself, then you have to offer something equal in return ...

Because otherwise it's taking advantage, and nobody likes to be taken advantage of... That is wrong, and that is exactly why it feels so unpleasant ...

Take this guide (which has become a bulky book by now) as an example, it is meant for everyone, with or without money, its purpose is to serve the common good, not to get rich from it but the people who participate in it must all be able to buy food, etc...

So there will be people for translations, and it would also be nice if there is a paper version of it, which can be passed on from hand to hand, the printer, the ink maker and the paper supplier and the people who provide all those raw materials must all be able to eat, etc... For the digital version we can, for example, put a digital portfolio at the bottom of the document, as for example in the case of a translation. A target amount can be included, or a voluntary contribution, so that everyone has access to it on the users side and everyone who contributed to it can eat on the other side....

The plan is to ensure that everyone can make income that will enable them to buy what they need to live a good life... because excess on the one hand and shortage on the other are just wrong ... and there is enough for everyone, everywhere

People who have shortages go on begging, stealing, doing mind-numbing, soul-damaging and unhealthy labor to make up for that shortage. As a result, they do not get to the essence of Life, which is to develop themselves, love their neighbors and others and be part of their community or society.

People who have the tend to feel elevated above those who have less, and to want more and more, to the point that they are no longer satisfied with anything, and seek ever more decadent and extreme stimuli...Besides, if you have a good car and a home, you can eat well, dress yourself etc, travel a bit etc, what more can you want ?

May usury ever occur again ? So that people like those who are now the richest of the world can once again have the opportunity to buy influence and power everywhere?

Or should large corporations become collective affairs, with profits limited to a maximum percentage, after correct and proportionate payment of a contribution to everyone who contributes to them ? Profits that are then used for expansion, new technology, etc. instead of being paid out to shareholders ? Or should all production be more local and small-scale, requiring much less transport to bring it to the end user? Or a combination of both? Can a producer ever again become so big that it can have a monopoly ? Not as far as I'm concerned.

Shouldn't everything be made durable again instead of having a built-in expiration date ? And be produced in an ecologically responsible way ? So that goods are produced again for the benefit of the users instead of for the benefit of the shareholders who always want to sell as much as possible at the highest possible profit?

The production of anything that is harmful to users, whether it is harmful medication, glyphosate sprayed food, toxic cleaning and self-care products or other consumer goods, don't belong in the New World either, nobody has the right to poison others, and for all these things there are natural and fully ecological alternatives. The same for production waste, that should be ecologically degradable within a reasonable period of time and should not pollute waterways or soil as is now the case with the factories of Umicore, to name only one example, which poisons the entire environment with cadmium and the like, making people sick, unable to grow food, etc..

Tobacco, for example, would be harmful, yet it is now produced on an enormous scale, by a few people who make huge profits, chemicals unknown to us are added and the government levies heavy taxes on it. Growing your own is not allowed at the moment.

As an alternative, why not allow everyone to grow such products themselves, plants in this case, organically, and allow small commercial production to serve those who do not want to or cannot grow it themselves for their own use? And so that many small honest producers can live off it instead of a few big ones ?

Same for marijuana, in many countries it is a banned product in the old world, why ? The reality is that this plant, a gift from Mother Nature, like all other plants, has many good properties in its natural, biological form, making it a threat to the pharmaceutical industry.

Not only does this plant possess many pharmacological properties with which for example epilepsy, depression and anxiety disorders can be tackled, the fibers can be used to make durable clothing, highly insulating building blocks and much more!

And besides that, every human being should have the free choice about what he or she does or doesn't do about everything, nobody has to determine that for another person as long as the basic rules are respected.

This also applies to coca leaves and poppies, beneficial plants. Poppies can be used for anesthesia during operations, but are very harmful once they are turned into opium or heroin. Coca leaves are also very beneficial, where they grow traditionally such as in Columbia and Peru people know all about it. These plants only become harmful when they are converted into cocaine using harmful chemicals, for the user, his or her surroundings, community and environment. In addition, because of its illegal nature, it has become a criminal currency that provides those who trade in it or are part of the transport chain with enormous amounts of money, which they then use to buy weapons, for example, to threaten and pressure poor coca farmers into continuing production and selling it at a pittance, thus violating the basic rules in several ways. Also, that criminal money enables them to build up a rich and powerful existence in the regular economy, and to pretend to be decent people. But people who make money by knowingly harming others are not decent, honest people. So we need to find a solution to that, to make sure that can't happen anymore. The best way to achieve that is to make sure that no one wants to buy it anymore, and you achieve that by making sure that no one needs it anymore, and you achieve that by making sure that everyone can be happy, in all aspects of life, and you achieve that by all working together to make sure that we have a good world, where everyone can develop themselves into the best they can be, every moment of every day, through trial and error.

In the New World, it must be possible for everyone to feel happy and no longer have to numb themselves with any product to somehow stay afloat.

Schools and Education

Schools essentially serve to teach young people reading, writing and arithmetic as a basis from which they can acquire a maximum amount of knowledge according to each individual's interests. In addition, they are great places to have friends around them often. However, they should no longer be indoctrination institutes, where children are forced against their nature to sit obediently on a chair all day and are only allowed to play at strictly set times. Pupils can be consulted on how to spend the day, on the subject matter that will be learned that day, on where the lessons will be given and even whether lessons will be given, because there are many ways to learn. And taking classes, going to school, should be voluntary, children learn in this way that they are free-born beings on this planet who may learn to think and decide for themselves what they do, how they think about and approach subjects. And we now know how important this is, of being allowed to be independent thinking beings, with self-determination. The entry and exit of classrooms where a certain subject is being taught at that time should be free, in agreement with the parents, for it is obviously not the intention that, for example, a five year old decides to leave the classroom and roam the streets without the protective guidance of an adult and without the parents knowing anything about it.

The intension must be that children can grow up to be sensible, knowledgeable, passionate, autonomous, thinking people in safe conditions, without coercion or a rigid framework in which everything has to be done, and with maximum respect for their development, personal nature and freedom of choice.

Common services

Roads should be paid for by the users, by a road tax, and for example a vignette for foreign users, to ensure that what is necessary can be done, not as a money vehicle for certain companies that through some form of corruption can obtain lucrative contracts. Of course, like everything else, this must be thought out collectively and approved by referendum.

Hospitals too, will operate in a totally different way. Now, in the old world, there are hospitals that earn millions every year from the production of heroin and patients often receive unnecessary and even harmful treatments, because everything has to make money. Medication is something that may solve certain problems in the short term, but does not address the cause, and in many cases causes other, more serious diseases in the longer term, and in the New World this can not be the case! There, too, it is necessary to think jointly and transparently about how it can be done to meet the needs of the sick and of hospital workers, according to the highest possible ethical codes. Instead of the pharmaceutical industry, whose products are harmful and whose motivation is not health but profit and power, the New World will look back to the healing power of plants, which, by the way, formed the basis of pharmaceuticals.

Taxes

If everyone, without exception, gave 10% of their income in taxes, would we not have enough to ensure that everything that is needed can be provided? Or do we just tax profits from companies of a certain size and tax goods? Or only on what is sold ?

Without expensive governments, public administrations, a huge police force that only had to take care of total control and repression, without courts and professional judges, without subsidies for big companies, multinationals, banks etc. that by the way didn't pay a cent of profit tax at all, 10% would be more than enough for all real common needs, no ?

Housing

Living, having a roof over your head that offers you shelter from the weather, gives your belongings a place, gives you privacy and also space to grow your food or just have a garden to be in contact with Mother Nature is a primal right of every being born on Earth. Land to do that must therefore be free, the Earth belongs to everyone, and as my mother used to say “we do not inherit land from our parents, we borrow it from our children”, so it cannot be a possession that you have to buy, only something that you have the right to use, and for which you take very well care of, and for a lifetime, because that is your primal right. Buildings and facilities installed on this land can, of course, be property, since the supplies for them are either bought or made by you. All this can be exchanged, sold or bequeathed upon death, e.g. to someone of the next generation, and failing that, for example community members who are ready to leave the parental home, e.g. by drawing lots among those who wish to do so. Or by other means and fair systems established by communities through consensus by referendum.

Common lands, such as common agricultural lands are on loan from those who farm them. The food they yield is for their own consumption, exchange or sale by the person who did the work for it.

Nearby communities' forests serve multiple purposes. They are habitats for many animals, places for people to enjoy and they also provide wood for construction and fuel for stoves of camp fires. The most logical way to deal with them is to take only what you need and do as little damage as possible. Leave old trees as there are enough others that can't really evolve due to lack of light, for example. And always plant more than you take away, so that more is added than disappears and enough is always available for everyone.

Meat production and consumption

Eating meat or fish is not a sin. One animal eats the other, so it is foreseen, that prevents overpopulation of species for which there would otherwise be a local food shortage in a limited area, as well as the outbreak of diseases, which are other ways of Mother Nature to prevent overpopulation, matter of preserving the natural balance. However, depleting sea parts with floating canning factories with great collateral damage violates the basic rules. Just as the breeding of animals on a large scale, in inhuman conditions, too little space, without daylight, crappy food and without respect for the natural needs of each animal violates them. Animal transport to and killing methods in slaughterhouses also violate the basic rules. The killing of an animal must be done quickly, and with an absolute minimum of stress before.

Every animal has the right to a good life before it is slaughtered, from birth until the very last moment. Keeping animals, for whatever purpose, should therefore only be done in a way that you yourself would want to undergo if you were in that animal's place. When people realize again that meat is a part of an animal's body that is killed for the purpose of eating, they will automatically eat less of it. Because the breeding of animals in mega-stables is a lucrative business in the old world, the cabal has ensured that animals in stores, for consumption, do not look like animals, but are unrecognizably packages of meat, which completely suppresses the association with the living being that it was before, and its suffering under that system. (That they now want us to switch to lab-meat probably has to do with the fact that they want to control even more what that "meat" contains, probably nothing good, think of e.g. the dioxin crisis, hormones, etc., and the fact that these profit models have become superfluous for them. Besides of course just wanting to deprive us of what we like, just to make us suffer extra for their pleasure).

The ethical standard is, what would not be good enough for yourself is not good enough for another.

Big brother surveillance

There are cameras everywhere, every movement is recorded and often observed in real time, do we want that in the New World? Do we break that system down completely, or do we preserve it, for example in a way that nothing is viewed to ensure our privacy unless it is necessary to solve a crime that has occurred ? Perhaps we can keep the things we are considering keeping in an initial time, until everyone is along in the New World and the ills of the old are a thing of the past ?

There is much to think about and to come up with joint proposals, which must then be voted on by means of a referendum, and if turns out it later that something was not quite the best solution after all, then the thinking exercise simply continues until the brackets are removed.... We humans can do this!

Finally, why choose the New World?

Because it is clear to everyone that the current system is sick to the bone, people are no longer getting to live in this rat race, we live in constant stress to achieve goals imposed by others, to pay the bills imposed on us by governments, power structures and multinational corporations that have hijacked our utilities.

Because Life is worth far more than that, because we don't want to leave our children in a world so thoroughly rotten that they themselves don't even dare to have children anymore. And why should we tolerate this any longer ? It can be done differently, the only thing we have to do is refuse to participate in the current system and lock up those who deliberately cause this and bring them before a fully transparent civil court for crimes against humanity!
For the love of the people, time to stand up together for the New World!

Things that the whole world needs to know also, will be, certainly for a brief moment, very, very disturbing to you. But, the whole truth needs to come out.

Dreams are also not what they have taught us, although the processing of things which happened during daytime can indeed also happen while we dream. When we sleep, and are very relaxed, having no external input, our brains changes frequencies. While we are in that state, non-earthly entities, of which there are many, such as the souls of our passed loved ones, among others, because them to are real, in many forms, frequencies and dimensions of the Universe, get easier in contact with our minds than when we are awake, having external inputs. These beings exist also in both Good and evil, that's why we have both nice dreams and nightmares. Everything is interconnected, as Above, so below.

Within the large variety of cosmic entities, there are some who have a physical body, some who don't and some switching between having and not having a physical body. There are also beings that can switch between several physical bodies, which we call shapeshifters, some of those can also shift between any of their physical and a non physical shape. They come from other planets, dimensions and solar systems. The ones who have a physical, non human form, known to us as aliens, from which we were told that they are science-fiction, but lately also admitted to be truly existing by several leading figures from secret space programs, have been coming to Earth since the beginning of times, even before humankind was here. There are many images of them, from ancient times, all over the world, such as in the Egyptian Pyramids, in Iraq, what is actually the old Sumeria, at the Maya's in South America, and so many other places. During all that time, they are ruling on Earth, apparently, there was some kind of an agreement in the Universe allowing them to live here, which included that other species were not allowed to intervene. This agreement was set for a determined time, and that time is now over, you could say that they run out of their rental contract. The cabal knows all of this for a very long time, some of them are themselves such beings, of the draconian or reptilian species and subspecies, which have the ability to shapeshift.

So that opens the sky, the door, the portal, for other, but this time benevolent species, which are also known as the Galactic Federation or Alliance, to pay us visits ! They want to help us with their advanced technologies, like medbeds, where you just can lie in when you're very ill, to be cured a few moments later. The zero-point energy that Nikola Tesla invented on Earth, is in fact also one of their technologies, which they learned to him and which makes the use of polluting energy obsolete. It was a gift to serve humanity, but the cabal has seen the possibility to keep it away from us. So don't be afraid when you see them in the sly of even landing in front of you, they are our friends and brothers, because everything in the Universe, is part of one and the same, which we call God. And yess, I do realize that this sounds totally crazy, but it is true, and there is plenty of evidences.

And I don't lie, even when the truth is unpleasant or even harsh , I NEVER lie, everyone who know me knows that, because lying, that is something of the beast, children of God don't lie, cheat, play dirty, suck your attention to them when they know you're very busy doing God's work, don't try to give you a bad reputation for no reason than to harm you, and so on... and that's how you recognize them. The'll ALWAYS try to do the best for each one, and for ALL. You should also know that we have to take all proverbs literally.

To finish, at least, for now, because it seems that there are always new things that need to be added, a few more things.

I also need to tell you that the beast, the devil, is also, but not only, an energetic entity. Not only, because it's also a matter of bloodlines, to learn about that, read the story of Cain and Abel, the twin-sons of Eva, which had first intercourse with the beast, followed by Adam, which made her have twins, one of each father. And we are genetically children of our parents, as they of their parents, and so on, al the way back to the first humans on Earth, to Eva and Adam, or to Eva and the beast. In the course of time, both are mixed, which makes that we all have both Good and evil in us, in different measures. The Darwin story, about us coming from apes, is bullocks, made up for us to not know that the Biblestory is true, because I that case we would have know that God is real, and also the devil is real. And the devil wanted us to lose our connection with God, because it really makes miracles happen and it would have made us God-servant, and would have made us very alert for the devil's tricks, since, if the One exists, the other one exists too. Right?

Of course, the devil wanted us to believe that none of it was true, for, instead, of alert, we would sleep... while he gained power without us knowing. I have no idea how he prevented us from being in contact with God before some 50 years ago. Anyway, we are starseeds, not ape-descendants.

So, on one hand there is the bloodline, responsible for the one to have more God's-genes, and the other have more devil's-genes. The ones with more God-genes are energetically mainly steered by Good/God, and the other ones by the devil/evil, if they allow that. Because we all have free choice, every moment of every day.

Allowing to be steered by evil has many forms, often, they are not even aware, they think it's normal, to be like that, to cheat, lie, play dirty,...

Since the beast knows that he's actually already done, he increases in every possible way his attacks, especially on powerful beings of Light, meant to decrease our power and gaining it himself.

So people need to be aware, within themselves and within others. And recognize it, lies, deception, making use of others, stealing, stealing your energy, keeping you away from doing God's work, making you look bad in front of others to damage you by faking reasons for that, telling you to stop arguing, pretending themselves as peacekeepers, while the only thing you are doing is telling someone why, what he or she is currently doing, is just not right, and so on.

It ALWAYS starts small !

Learn it and teach it, from generation to generation.

And this is the song I received today for our New World:

Robert Palmer – Every Kinda People Lyrics
from album: Double Fun (1978)

Said the fight to make ends meet
Keeps a man upon his feet
Holding down his job
Trying to show he can't be bought

Ooh it takes every kinda people
To make what life's about, yeah
Every kinda people
To make the world go 'round

Someone's looking for a lead
In his duty to a King or to a creed
Protecting what he feels is right
Fights against wrong with his life

There's no profit in deceit
Honest men know that Revenge does not taste sweet
Whether yellow, black or white
Each and every man's the same inside

It takes every kinda people
To make what life's about, yeah
It takes every kinda people
To make the world go 'round
Doo doo doo.....

You know that love's the only goal
That could bring a peace to any soul
Hey and every man's the same
He wants the sunshine in his name

It takes every kinda people
To make what life's about, yeah
It takes every kinda people
To make the world go 'round
Mmmm, every kinda people
To make what life's about

About 6 months ago, God sended me this other Robert Palmer song, which helped me keeping on.

The best of both worlds
